Whereas former state Senator Ted Hallock, who served 20 years in the Oregon Legislative Assembly from 1963 to 1983, was known for his fiery passions and his devotion to his constituents; and

Whereas Senator Hallock was born in Hollywood, California, in 1921, the son of an electrical engineer; and

Whereas Senator Hallock moved to Portland, Oregon, in 1921, and settled in Irvington; and

Whereas Senator Hallock enlisted in the United States Army Air Forces after the attack on Pearl Harbor in June 1942 and became a seasoned veteran of over 30 combat missions, earning a Purple Heart, the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal and the Presidential Unit Citation; and

Whereas after the war, Senator Hallock earned a journalism degree from the University of Oregon and worked in radio, earning the prestigious Peabody Award in 1952 for a news talk show; and

Whereas in 1962, after covering elections as part of his radio job, Hallock, a lifelong Democrat, decided to run for office and entered the state Senate in 1963, announcing his intention to “upgrade the general intellectual level of the Senate”; and

Whereas Hallock was known as the state Senate’s best spontaneous orator and in 1973 gave birth to Oregon’s initial land use legislation, Senate Bill 100, requiring every city and county in the state to create a land use plan; and

Whereas Hallock left the state Senate in 1983 but never really retired, returning to advertising and serving on the Northwest Power Planning Council where he supported measures to restore salmon runs on the Snake and Columbia Rivers; and

Whereas Senator Hallock was a political giant in the Oregon tradition, who passed away at the age of 85 in December 2006; now, therefore,

Be It Resolved by the Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon:

That we, the members of the Seventy-fourth Legislative Assembly, extend our condolences to the family of former state Senator Ted Hallock and recognize his outstanding service, numerous achievements and contributions to the people and the State of Oregon throughout his life.
