ISSUES DISCUSSED:

Provisions of the measure

EFFECT OF COMMITTEE AMENDMENT: No amendment.

BACKGROUND: A person can be charged with a traffic offense punishable of $500-$1000 for refusing to take a breath test. However, refusal to submit to a blood or urine test is not included under the current law. This measure corrects that omission. This will be particularly important in cases involving substances other than alcohol when a Drug Recognition Expert (DRE) is conducting an investigation for driving under the influence of intoxicants (DUII).
