BACKGROUND: Oregon's Removal-Fill Law (ORS 196.795-990), enacted in 1967, requires anyone who plans to remove or fill material in waters of the state to first obtain a permit from the Department of State Lands. The purpose of the law is to protect public navigation, fishery, and recreational uses of the waters. "Waters of the state" includes "natural waterways, including all tidal and nontidal bays, intermittent streams, constantly flowing streams, lakes, wetlands and other bodies of water in this state, navigable and nonnavigable, including that portion of the Pacific Ocean that is in the boundaries of this state." Senate Bill 518 A would allow the Department of State Lands to issue general permits for removal or fill by rule or by order, depending on the type of permit application.
