BACKGROUND: The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) was created in 1933 to provide deposit insurance to guarantee the safety of deposits in 7,723 member banks. The FDIC was created as a response to bank failures that began in the late 1920s. At the program's inception, deposits were insured up to $2,500 per depositor; currently, deposits up to $250,000 per depositor are insured.

The National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund (NCUSIF) was created in 1970 to provide deposit insurance to protect the deposits of credit union members at insured institutions. The NCUSIF currently insures nearly 87 million accounts at 5.036 federal credit unions and 3.065 state-chartered credit unions.
