

McKenzie Gray

5-17-11

Ducks

ADS Review:

Review

What I liked about out doors school was getting away from the class room and getting the chance to learn in a different environment. I also enjoyed meeting the smiling student leaders and staff. If I came back as a student counselor my name would be Fern.

One field study I would like to teach would be about all the different plants on the camp site. I would explain how important plants are for animal's habitats and the food chain. I would teach the importance of plants by doing different fun activities with the students. An activity I would do would be to go on a hike and point out all the plants, and have a scavenger hunt.

My second choice of a field study to teach would be Animals. I would also go on a hike for this field study as a fun activity and explain the five objectives that animals need in order to live. Being space, oxygen, water, food, and shelter, then have a hunt to see who can find the most of the animals. Those are the two field studies I would like to teach.