It is hard to support a family and attend the University at the same time. Very difficult to make ends meet for all families, especially single parents.	2/21/2013 13:09

Having left College due to overwhelming debt, I highly recommend this approach to higher education.	2/21/2013 13:11

I'd love to be paying the state for my student loans instead of a company - who uses the profit on my loans for ceos and stock holders rather than paying it forward. Even those of us who have graduated and in our careers want to see the system change - if only for our children's sake!	2/21/2013 13:11
This nation -- and Oregon -- have their priorities out of order1 We give subsidies to tobacco planters, yet charge atrocious prices for education and, essentially, allow usury for student loan fees. Oregon should require LOW student rate fees! It's called, "Priorities! Priorities! Priorities!"	2/21/2013 13:12
	2/21/2013 13:13
These students are our future and it has become too expensive for them to continue their education.	2/21/2013 13:14

It makes no sense to weigh people down with debt for their entire lives and to think that it goes to the leeches of Wall Street that suck the people dry already disgusts me. My grandchildren live in Oregon.

Colleges are creating an ignorant society because they're cost-prohibitive. An ignorant society is a weak nation.

Our great nation should invest in our future young people. I have faith in them.

2/21/2013 13:19

2/21/2013 13:19

Paying off crushing debt interferes in so many ways with young people getting a good start in life. The reasons should be obvious.

2/21/2013 13:20

I am a 46 year old mother of two young people. I have a Bachelor's degree and completed one year of Master's degree work. I am still paying off my college debt and the cost I paid for my year of graduate work does not even come close to the cost my son is paying for his first year at Oregon State University. I am educated, have a good job and have always paid my bills but was unable to save for my children's education. Consequently, my son will leave college with a massive amount of debt and my daughter who will be a freshman in college a year from now will likely have to do the same. Oregon's state colleges are by far some of the highest priced colleges for in-state residents in the country. We need to invest in the children of our state by offering them an affordable higher education so that they will stay in our state and continue to grow Oregon's economy.

2/21/2013 13:20

this only helps all of us when everyone, including grads with earning power can spend money rather than give to banks!

2/21/2013 13:21

2/21/2013 13:21

As a working professional who has over $40K in debt due to attending university, and my husband having $30K for the same reason - we are always held back financially with this debt and thus our ability to serve (we are both ministers) in areas where we don't need to worry about what we are paid (in order to meet bills) is not an issue.

2/21/2013 13:21

Our depends on a highly educated and skilled workforce. The college debt can hinder so many bright young people from attending and providing our economy with workforce we need!

2/21/2013 13:21

We need to invest in Oregon's workforce to build a strong economy that benefits everyone.

2/21/2013 13:21

2/21/2013 13:22

2/21/2013 13:22

I think it's insane that friends of my husband and mine that did not attend college are BETTER off financially because they are not 100k in debt from student loans like we are. We have been punished for "doing the right thing" by furthering our educations. It has drastically hurt our way of living.

2/21/2013 13:22

2/21/2013 13:22

My son has gone into debt to earn three degrees and now will have to flip burgers to pay those loans off.

2/21/2013 13:23

The expense is so overwhelming that even the middle class struggle to meet costs of higher education. Causing many to work part-time on week-ends to help defray those requirements. I speaking from experience - my daughter is currently studing to become a Dental Hygienist. The gas expense alone is $450.00 to $500.00 monthly to and from (approximately 90 miles daily 3 to 4 times a week) the college. Best regards, Kirt Curran Starting life with a lifetime of debt is cruel, especially when jobs are scarce.

2/21/2013 13:24

2/21/2013 13:25

Support the people that want the education. So people can get off of welfare.

2/21/2013 13:27

2/21/2013 13:28

2/21/2013 13:29

Every Oregonian deserves access to an affordable college education.

2/21/2013 13:31

Two things make democracy work, an educated electorate and the fact that the majority of the people are good. Do it for democracy, and a strong future. A mind is a terrible thing to waste

2/21/2013 13:31

Students who possess the intellectual acumen to attend college should not be denied due to increasing education costs- a sure way to ensure the status quo. In order to find employment that keeps people off welfare, many need to have a college degree. Counting on service industry employment is not the way to build a strong economy. Our country as a whole needs a way to return to production (educated highly qualified workers), not consumption which contributes to "brain drain" in other nations.

2/21/2013 13:33

powerful PDC. They are crowing over their ability to release "Grants" to various so-called livability issues. Example: "PDC has awarded $2.2 million in CLG grants to more than 40 projects that share several common goals: to better serve the community, advance social equity, focus on disadvantaged Portlanders, and build local capacity". These "Projects" include Street Fairs and other pointless "livability" items. (check out their stated budget items for these funds). The ONLY reason I bring this up is this; Why are the basic needs of Oregon's Citizens NOT being met, yet our government is showering useless entities with millions??!! We NEED to fix our roads, we NEED to let our youth have college educations without having to graduate with debt that creates a hopeless future for them. We NEED to create better futures for our citizens that are REAL! Not some empowered entity that uses our financial resources to create useless, rhetoric filled projects that go nowhere but only ensures that this ever expanding and untouchable entity will have "forever" power positions for themselves. Yes, I understand that I am Educating young people is one of the best investments any society can make

2/21/2013 13:33

2/21/2013 13:33

We can not continue to saddle students with this kind of debt and expect to re-build our economy. We must educate our youth in order to re-build our economy and support investments also in needed infrastructure repairs, energy conservation, and manufacturing..

2/21/2013 13:34

I am the first of my family to graduate from college. Education is the way to break the cycle of poverty and ignorance. However, I am drowning in school loans. I thought I went to school for a better future. I'm an excellent student and McNair scholar. Why am I fighting to survive and living paycheck to paycheck? I worked hard for many years and want to be able to live the life I worked for.

2/21/2013 13:34

My own son had to return to school and get a loan to do so because he never found adequate work after his FIRST college degree. Therefore had to take out loans to do so. It just sucks the life and mental health out of a psyche!!!

2/21/2013 13:34

2/21/2013 13:37

Our students and their education are important investment for our community's future! We should all support this.

2/21/2013 13:37

I graduated from college and medical school- some money was owed but it was a small amount at 3% or less. I am 77 yrs old.

2/21/2013 13:37

2/21/2013 13:38

2/21/2013 13:39

Young people burdened with crushing debt cannot buy a home and put more earnings back into the economy.

2/21/2013 13:39

2/21/2013 13:41

2/21/2013 13:41

2/21/2013 13:41

I don't know if this plan is perfect, but it's the right direction. We need to invest in our future, and that means making education available to any qualified persons who want it.

2/21/2013 13:41

We are drowning in student debt.

2/21/2013 13:41

2/21/2013 13:43

2/21/2013 13:43

Many advanced nations subsidize higher education to a large extent. The benefit to families, students and the nations themselves is enormous. This 'pay it forward' concept is an intriguing step towards liberating families from the crushing burden of education expense and deserves serious consideration.

2/21/2013 13:44

2/21/2013 13:46

In the 1970's college was free for CA kids. This helped fuel the rise of the 9th largest economy in the world. Other countries pay for free college. We should do no less! Plus an OREGON STATE BANK would insulate us from Wall St. corruption. Another worthy goal! Let's move our economy forward!

2/21/2013 13:49

I have 3 college aged children and our income is low. They're all intelligent and could contribute so much more to our community if they could go to college, but two are having to postpone further education for financial reasons.

2/21/2013 13:51

2/21/2013 13:51

This seems like a plan WELL worth an attempt.

2/21/2013 13:54

I am horrified at the amount of debt these young people are faced with. It is antithetical to our basic principles to make a college education so difficult to afford. It is doubly troubling when so much of the debt is to out-of-state, huge lenders.

2/21/2013 13:54

2/21/2013 13:55

Put our future in the hands of the next educated generation instead of banks! 2/21/2013 13:55

My son will leave college this year with a Masters degree and over $40,000 in student debt. There has to be a better way. 2/21/2013 13:55
2/21/2013 13:56

2/21/2013 14:00

Stop letting bankers make big profits off our college students. 2/21/2013 14:00

My college and law education costs in the 1960s & 70's were manageable due to GI Bill and other federal programs. They enabled me to insure a significant payback to Oregon and society thru taxes and community efforts. Today's students deserve the same opportunities. 2/21/2013 14:03
2/21/2013 14:03
2/21/2013 14:06
2/21/2013 14:06

We need to invest in our children's education 2/21/2013 14:06
Students are the least able to sustain heavy debt. That combined with the bleak employment scenario they face is worse than awful for us as responsible citizens to allow to go on. 2/21/2013 14:07
2/21/2013 14:07
2/21/2013 14:07
2/21/2013 14:08

A good education should not only be

2/21/2013 14:10
2/21/2013 14:11
2/21/2013 14:12

I am 63 years old and I went back to school for the 3rd time so I could update my skills and try to obtain a job. When I was in college for the first time I had scholarship and student loan of only $10,000 for 4 years. Today's 4 year college student has a much larger debt to pay off with a much tighter job market. If we want to grow the economy students need to be able to pay off that debt and still have enough money to live on. We need to change this for future students.

2/21/2013 14:12

2/21/2013 14:13

2/21/2013 14:16

2/21/2013 14:17

2/21/2013 14:17

Saddling recent graduates with insurmountable loans is the fastest way to entrench an entire generation with no means of truly pursuing a passion vital to the spirit of our communities and our nation as a whole.

2/21/2013 14:22

2/21/2013 14:22

2/21/2013 14:22

I have $38,000 in debt having only earned my bachelor's degree. Now I have to choose between a master's or buying a house! It's not right!

2/21/2013 14:25

Our state needs educated people for all aspects of a good society.

2/21/2013 14:29

2/21/2013 14:30

2/21/2013 14:31

Some of our brightest kids might not have the money to go to college and that really is not right. We all lose when a brilliant mind is wasted.

2/21/2013 14:31

2/21/2013 14:32

Education is investment in the future of our state and in America. We must find a way to make it affordable.

2/21/2013 14:34

2/21/2013 14:35

College debt is crippling the chances for graduates to enter the middle class and become home owners. Post secondary education allows low-income individuals to break the cycle of poverty.

2/21/2013 15:02

This plan is fair and reasonable

2/21/2013 15:03

2/21/2013 15:06

It's too expensive for lower middle income hard working families. There's not enough grant money for us families caught in the middle.

2/21/2013 15:07

In many parts of the world, an education comes at a reasonable cost. We're blowing it by saddling our college grads with big debts.

I hope Oregon can lead on this!

2/21/2013 15:08

2/21/2013 15:12

2/21/2013 15:14

2/21/2013 15:17

I can't pay my loans without being broke rest of my life. I take care of poor people as a Nurse Practitioner and don't make enough to pay my loans

2/21/2013 15:19

My youngest son graduated in August 2012. He had to take out loans. To get a $20 job to pay it back he had to take a job in Siagon Vietnam. I would like to keep these minds working for us. He loves his job and the opportunity to again work overseas. But shouldn't $20 jobs be waiting for our grads? Wages are getting lower as the 1% get greedier. Look at the Koch Brothers telling the Georgia Pacific employees how to vote.

2/21/2013 15:31
2/21/2013 15:33
2/21/2013 15:34

We need an educated citizenry! Currently, the cost of higher education is making this unattainable. HB 2838 will provide a way out of this. I hope you will support this bill. Pay it forward sounds like a solution (what we have so little of these days). Let's try it, and if it works we all win--especially the students!

2/21/2013 15:43

2/21/2013 15:45

Higher education is one of best investments the state can provide for the long term.

2/21/2013 15:46
2/21/2013 15:47

If I were a student now, I would be in favor of HB 2838

2/21/2013 15:49

This is not about me. I am nearly 50 years old and am repaying my student debt. Rather, I want to support measures that help future students avoid the considerable debt burden that I have.

2/21/2013 15:49

Opportunities for maintaining the middle class are evaporating rapidly in this country. If we don't reverse this trend the consequences long term will be devastating to the U.S.

2/21/2013 15:51

2/21/2013 15:52

2/21/2013 15:53

2/21/2013 15:57

2/21/2013 15:57

My kids and I all have student loans that make it impossible to have any disposable income (read: buy a used car)

2/21/2013 16:00

2/21/2013 16:02

It is hard enough to make a living wage in this economy, without the debt of of a degree program.

2/21/2013 16:06

It was not that many years ago a college degree meant that you could get a good paying job. Even then it might take 15 years or more to pay it off. Graduates now are working for $10 per hour(if they're lucky) or needing to get a Masters degree, going even farther into debt. Please consider options to keep Oregon grads in our state and debt free.

2/21/2013 16:06

2/21/2013 16:08

So we can have an educated work force that can afford to live without the burden of expensive loan payments and I think the idea of this bill is very well thought out.

2/21/2013 16:13

2/21/2013 16:19

2/21/2013 16:20

2/21/2013 16:21

2/21/2013 16:22

2/21/2013 16:28

Our state needs a well educated, well trained workforce. With the state of the economy, families are not able to provide the opportunity for higher education and ensuing stable employment. Thus our state bears the burden of unstable, unprepared workers and must support unemployment. It makes sense to support growth and development of skilled, educated workforce.

2/21/2013 16:33

So we don't all get buried under debt that we cannot escape

2/21/2013 16:38

This may soon be the ONLY way middle income and lower income students in Oregon can continue to attend Universities & Colleges in the state. Let's make this happen!

2/21/2013 16:42

I am a student/teacher and I am sinking into a financial depression due to my student loans. We need help! Thank you for your understanding with this issue.

2/21/2013 16:51

2/21/2013 16:54

When I get my degree I don't want to spend the rest of my life paying off my student loans. When my father went to college, his tuition was a fraction of what I am paying. It's completely unacceptable! Thanks, Matt Svendsen

2/21/2013 16:54

I am $60,000 in student loan debt and 40 years old. I pay $1,000 a month in student loan debt -- that's money that could be going toward a mortgage, for instance. Frankly, our economy is so bad, how does it serve us to have so many people struggling to pay off student debt instead of being able to contribute to the economy?

2/21/2013 16:55

Everyone should have the right to an education.

2/21/2013 17:05

2/21/2013 17:05

2/21/2013 17:11

2/21/2013 17:15

I graduated from a University in Oregon recently, and I know the realities of the incurred debt for education vs. the job opportunities and salaries in the job market today. New graduates are having a hard time competing with so many experienced workers out there job hunting as well these days. The high student loan debts adds another layer of stress and struggle that weighs on our optimism and drive to succeed. In fact, it impedes our success in many ways because it influences how we are making major life decisions, such as when we are looking for work. The Debt become priority and drives our choices. It is not a healthy cycle! The Pay if Forward system would allow many deserving students to seek higher education. So many young people do not seek a college education because the tuition is unaffordable and the loans and student debt seems overwhelming or scary. Our country is losing out on so much potential and talent because of this.

2/21/2013 17:15

"Pay it Forward" - what a terrific idea! It gives Oregon students affordable access to higher education, eliminates the growing burden of student debt, and funds future students, and cuts out predatory lending and collection of student loans. Hooray! What could be better?

honestly, I don't know how anyone can afford to go to college these days and the staggering amount of debt kids are taking on to go to college is crazy. It's time to do something to fix this so more people can go to college and not be in debt for the rest of their lives.

I am continuing my college education not only so that I may work in a field that I love, and also to work in a job that doesn't hurt me physically, as I have broken my back and cannot continue the type of work I used to do but I am also furthering my education for the purpose of contributing to the community with my skills and abilities. It is a heavy burden and a huge stressor knowing how in debt I am becoming in order to better my education. I feel strongly that education should not cause so much stress due to finances. Wealthy people should not be the only people who receive the advantage of higher education and there needs to be more easily accessible grants for single parents to return to college. I am signing this petition in high hopes that this dilemma will get closer to resolution well before my own child reaches the age that she may reach for a higher college education in her life. I would like to know how this plan would affect students who go to college later in life when they cannot reasonably expect to work for another 20 years. I started college at 58, and will be paying student loans until I am 72. It would have been nice to retire someday, but my student loans will prevent that. Still, going to college was worth everything.

I teach in college and see the horrible things that happen to students with huge school debt. I attended free and came out of college with no debt. It's not fair that the State no longer supports college education.

the current program of indentured servitude is just getting worse as education costs skyrocket, there need to be some controls placed on the outrageously expensive corporate education companies like ITT and DeVry like a commercials comparing the value and cost of public vs private education to make people aware of how much they are being ripped off.

2/22/2013 2:39

It does not make sense that students who attend college should have the burden of so much debt that they feel overwhelmed upon graduation. This feeling of being overwhelmed impacts students' abilities to be completely present for job interviews and in moving forward to apply their education in a way that 'gives back'. Knowledge is power; providing higher education will only improve our country's economic condition and keep the crime rate down. People who are secure, educated, and able to move forward without an overload of college debt will only enhance the quality of their lives, which will impact many areas across the board (e.g. parenting, the ability to purchase a home, finding employment, participating in community, and 'giving back' as a whole).

Graduating college with mountains of debt inhibit students from following any path other than the highest paying job available. This will reduce entrepreneurial paths, and reduce innovation and discovery. Also the pressure of needing to pay debt adds to the control of employees by unscrupulous employers.

This is ONE Bill that has it's priorities straight. I support it. You should too. Wouldn't it be a great way to put Oregon on the map?

2/22/2013 13:29

Businesses in Oregon need an educated workforce.

2/22/2013 13:54

2/22/2013 19:18

Students have way too much debt which discourages graduates.

2/22/2013 19:45

2/22/2013 20:30

Do we want just SOME Oregonians to have the chance of a quality college education or just those who can afford it. Debt is a deterrent - it shouldn't be there. Let's catch up with progressive societies and make sure higher education is genuinely available to all.

2/22/2013 20:38

2/22/2013 22:10

This is a great idea and will place Oregon at the forefront in solving a national problem. Let's get the next generation educated without overwhelming hardship for anyone.

Since the Regan years, the pursuit of a higher education has become harder and harder to achieve in this country. Even those who are able to go to college are often burdened with crushing student loan debt. If our country is to remain a global leader we must return an emphasis on making higher education more access able to all. Please support this legislation.

2/23/2013 13:18

Students are graduating with over $20K in debt with a bad job market. They need your help!

2/23/2013 14:00

At 45 I returned to college and graduated incurring student debt. For 6 years I had a job resulting from my education but then became a casualty of the economic crisis. I still have this debt and continue struggling to make my payments but because I am a woman in my mid-50's I am also not desirable to many employers. Is this fair? Or right? My health is declining because I have no health care coverage, my home is perilously close to foreclosure, and my life is complicated by trying to meet those extra payments for debt every month although I have now paid for 11 years and never been late. What is the greater good and do I deserve a break or do we need another bag lady?

2/23/2013 14:54

Education = the foundation to a strong economy. The tech and science industries are hurting for educated people. The gap needs to be repaired.

2/23/2013 15:00

We should not burden our brightest young people with debts as they seek to advance their educations. We, in the State of Oregon, are the beneficiaries of their noble intentions and efforts. Let us work out a creative solution and not fall into the grimy hands of the finance industry.

2/23/2013 15:54

I went to school on the GI Bill after WWII. Education is a Human Right and driving students into debt is a crime.

2/23/2013 18:01

Let's try this.

2/23/2013 20:35

Having been a student in Oregon's higher education system, I know how difficult it is for families to carry such high student loan debt. In this era of joblessness and economic uncertainty it is imperative that Oregonians support our students and encourage our young people to develop their skills and talents. We need them.

2/23/2013 23:13

I have two children who I hope will have the opportunity to attend college without either them or wife and I going into debt. This proposal at the very least merits further study to see if it can actually accomplish what it claims to be able to do, without additional taxes and government expenditures.

2/24/2013 3:32

What I admired most about the US when I first came here is its ongoing education system that discriminates against no one. Unfortunately, high tuition is discrimination! This used to not be so!

2/24/2013 14:49

It's a bad choice to decide whether to work for a low-paying job for the rest of your life, or to try to get a good education and trying to pay off the high current cost of it for the rest of your life.

Since the government is wasting most of Americas future and prosperity at this point and sends us in to never to payed off national and personal debt the now almost worthless "federal reserve notes' are still being spent on ridiculous things like war's, banker bailouts, surveillance of all kinds, drones and military bases to take over other countries and their wealth, why not spend some it wisely on your nations future? Get your citizens educated so we can compete with the world in businesses of all and every kind. America and WE THE PEOPLE can do it. It is the bankers and the government that need to listen to WE THE PEOPLE, because the people are right and the bankers/government need to listen to us. We want an education and we want you to act responsibly with the money and Americas future. Thank you

Higher education should be free, but our country not only charges for it, they make students pay until they DIE. That's just as mean as we can get.

I have a son in an Oregon state school right now and I think this is a terrific idea to help students afford school while making a commitment to Oregon, and strengthen our state for the long term.

3/13/2013 18:02

I fully support this plan for funding furthering education for all Oregonians!

3/13/2013 18:02

Higher education is becoming an option for the elite. All young people should have the opportunity to attend university. The costs of attending university have risen at a much higher rate than the average paycheck can handle. Please take action and preserve our young people's opportunities for higher education.

3/13/2013 18:03

3/13/2013 18:05

3/13/2013 18:05

Education should be affordable for everyone, and this is a great solution. As a current college student, I fully support this bill. Please vote yes on HB 2838!

3/13/2013 18:05

3/13/2013 18:05

Having been a professor I'm familiar with student debt, the system needs to be upgraded if we want more students to go to college.

3/13/2013 18:05

If we want OUR STATE to have quality people making decisions in the future we must educate everyone! We must take care of this generation and not burden them with a lifetime of debt. Life is hard enough and throws enough financial burdens you never see coming on you to you. At least if our children are educated we give them all a level playing field of starting off with the tools they need to succeed in life. The best tool in life is knowledge period!

3/13/2013 18:05

3/13/2013 18:05

3/13/2013 18:05

I currently pay $388 per month just for my college loan and another $168 for my husbands loan. That is a lot of money out of our monthly budget. Something needs to be done to make college more affordable.

3/13/2013 18:05

I am a graduate of Oregon's higher education system, I have student loan debt that I am repaying...Let's lighten the load for future generations.

3/13/2013 18:05

It is an investment for future prosperity no matter what one's socioeconomic background is.

3/13/2013 18:05

I felt like the only choice I had was to continue in low paying jobs or incur 10s of thousands of dollars in education debt. It seemed like the only way to grow up and stop washing dishes. So I took the education with the debt.

3/13/2013 18:05

3/13/2013 18:05

Education is an investment in our ourselves and each other. The WWII GI Bill paid back in tax revenue 7 times the cost. That is a winning investment! I graduated with more than $70,000 in student loan debt at the University of Oregon that will take me years to repay. Money that could be growing our economy will instead be paying interest to banks.

3/13/2013 18:05

The burden of student debt has put the American dream for many young people. A new system is needed to help aspiring student's attain empowering degrees without the prohibitively high cost.

Think of how much money would go back into our local economy if people didn't have stifling loan bills each month. Please help shape the future we want to live in.

3/13/2013 18:07

3/13/2013 18:08

I have over $100k in student loan debt and my husband has close to $80k. We are going to be struggling for the rest of our lives and don't want to see our children do the same. Please help create a manageable system that supports higher education for the next generation, we need it!

3/13/2013 18:08

3/13/2013 18:08

I am a professor and am very concerned about the amount of debt students are burdened with. We need to address this now!

3/13/2013 18:08

3/13/2013 18:08

The availability of Higher Education for all Oregonians will help us fill local jobs with local people and draw companies looking for educated resources to our communities. Let's give our students the best advantages possible.

3/13/2013 18:08

3/13/2013 18:08

No one should graduate from college drowning in debt! Every other industrialized nation makes higher education free or affordable. So should we!

3/13/2013 18:08

I would love the option to go back to school and get a degree to do social work with victims of crime and those who have been subject to slavery. With still $8000.00 in debt from my first run at school, I need an affordable option to return. I am a single parent with a child with Cerebral Palsy, her father is in jail and has never in 14yrs paid a penny of support. This would be a significant step towards a better life for her and the ability to get good medical insurance for our family.

3/13/2013 18:11

As a full time student currently attempting a career restart after multiple years of unemployment - with 2 kids within 4 years if college - this would certainly make a positive impact in my life.

3/13/2013 18:11

Great idea worth serious consideration. The devil is in the details.

3/13/2013 18:11

I was lucky to have a high tolerance for debt as I made my way out of poverty into being the business owner, teacher and lifelong learner I am today. I was able to do that because of federal grants, scholarships and - of course - student loans. I am happy I was able to take out those loans, but am now absolutely crushed by student loan debt. I'm making it, but barely. My daughter has now reached the age where she is ready to start her own college adventure. She wants to stay in Oregon, for college, for the future. She is an Oregonian and wants to stay that way. Helping her to do this, and to get the Engineering degree she wants, without being crushed by debt afterwards... well, that would be a gift beyond measure. Her health would surely be better than mine, due to reduced financial stress, and she would be able to be a great benefit to everybody around her. This is the kind of thing Oregon should become known for - being a place where people can get ahead regardless of their background - and STAY ahead. Please support this effort!

3/13/2013 18:13

Graduating from college should be wonderful. But all your thinking about is the debt you have accumulated during those 4 years and how your going to pay them back. It is very stressful and can take a toll on you.

3/13/2013 18:13

3/13/2013 18:16

Oregon students cannot be burdened with massive student debt in this uncertain work environment. They deserve a clean start, so that they can be productive Oregonians. 3/13/2013 18:17

As the requirements for attaining even entry-level jobs become higher and higher, a college education becomes more and more something that is required to earn a living wage. We don't make children go out into the world without nurturing them and teaching the skills necessary to survive, so why would we make adults go out into the world without giving them something that is now necessary to survive in this economic climate? 3/13/2013 18:17

I was lucky to avoid debt when I went to school by serving in the military. Most people I know weren't and have a pile of debt & interest when the graduate. 3/13/2013 18:17

I support debt free higher education because it benefits all of us. Everyone, not just the wealthy, will have the option of earning a degree. I have $100,000.00 in student loan debt because I wanted to work in social services and help our society. I have a master's degree and will never be paid what my master's degree is worth. I will never be able to pay this back. We should not be punished for wanting to get an education in order to better our communities. My generation will be in a financial hole their entire lives which only hurts our economy. If we were not forced to pay these obscene amounts of money we could be buying homes and stimulating the economy.

3/13/2013 18:22

an educated populace is essential for society to thrive...students are hampered with crushing debt they probably will never be able to pay off. My son in law has a school debt of well over $300,000. This includes his graduate work

3/13/2013 18:23

3/13/2013 18:23

My son graduated college with the degree he worked hard to obtain. I tried to help out where and when I could and still he has ended up with an overwhelming load of educational debt. He will be paying it back most of his life and that isn't fair. He shouldn't have to have this overload of debt that will ALWAYS be there. More than anything he wants to carry on his education to earn his Phd but the cost is beyond him. He cannot work full time to pay back his loans and take on more school costs. So he loses out and society loses out because higher training is being priced out of reach. It is imperative that something be done. We're losing the talents of one generation, we can't possibly afford to lose the next.

3/13/2013 18:24

3/13/2013 18:24

3/13/2013 18:24

Sounds good!

I am a single mother just finishing my BA in interdisciplinary studies from a private university here in Oregon. The amount of debt that I will inherit upon graduation and the current job scarcity in Oregon puts my daughter and I me at great risk in joining others within the social service lines. As you are aware social services is no longer a "guarantee" for low income individuals and their families. By signing this proposal Oregon is sending a positive message, "Oregonians support higher education and positive self concept so that families and individuals can thrive, not simply survive." I support this and my fellow Oregonians. I am hoping that you will too.

3/13/2013 18:24

My student debt is crippling working FT for PPS & I am in deferment my pay is so low I can barely stay afloat. We have to stop this madness. It should include some sort of rescue for those of us already struggling with high student debt.

The US is falling behind on higher education. The debt incurred for today's student is prohibitive to considering college. European nations have figured out a way provide free education, we are falling way behind. Is this what makes us great?

3/13/2013 18:28

3/13/2013 18:29

Educated people are our state's greatest asset for the future. Yet having them hamstring with huge school debt does no one any good. I support this novel way of funding our future!

Student debt is meat for the vultures.

3/13/2013 18:30

3/13/2013 18:30

I have two children facing student debt. This seems a much more sensible way to address the crushing cost of college education.

3/13/2013 18:30

The debt burden taken on by students in an environment wherein they can have no assurance of their ability to pay it back, is becoming a significant deterrent to pursuing a higher education. Beyond dealing with the massive administrative waste and inefficiencies in state educational institutions, eliminating this enormous burden of debt is critical to maintaining an educated workforce.

Higher education for Oregon students is a key for their future and ours. Please support this pay-it-forward bill

3/13/2013 18:34

I'm 25 and graduated from an Oregon public university in 2011 with over $65,000 in student loans. I now make a competitive salary at an amazing job and yet I still have to live like the proverbial 'poor college student' because my loan payments cost me THIRTY (30) percent of my monthly income. After all other living costs, I have very little leftover to save or invest. You won't see me stimulating the economy by purchasing a house or any other type of long term investment for at least 10 years. Instead, I am investing in the over-priced salaries of executives at citiBank and Discover Student Loans. Something should change for future students. Because this sucks.

3/13/2013 18:34

The nation has no future without easily available higher education, and stable education is good for Oregon. It brings students, jobs, and innovation by keeping residents and drawing the best out of state students in.

3/13/2013 18:35

3/13/2013 18:35

3/13/2013 18:36

My children can't choose to go to school to become professionals in the jobs that Oregon needs most, or that they are passionate about--they have to choose schooling for jobs that pay well due to huge student loan debt. This pay it forward idea is excellent!

3/13/2013 18:37

3/13/2013 18:37

I like this idea with one reservation. I would hope that if this became law that the percentage of their adjusted gross income be reduced for all and the 20 year plan be reduced as well if at all feasible .

3/13/2013 18:37

Our students are our future. They need a good, affordable education.

3/13/2013 18:37

3/13/2013 18:37

When I was applying for school money was more of a deciding factor than the actual institution or degree I was wanting. I think everyone deserves to follow their dreams to the best of their abilities and not fear a cloud of debt gathering over their head every step of the way. College is stressful enough. One should look forward to their future instead of dreading their financial downfalls.

3/13/2013 18:38

3/13/2013 18:38

3/13/2013 18:38

We need something like this!

3/13/2013 18:38

Our students need to be able to pay for college without having massive student loans to pay off after they get work.

3/13/2013 18:39

My grandchildren...Oregon's greatest resource! I had financial help in college from NDSL, forgiven when I went into teaching.

3/13/2013 18:39

I believe that higher education should be equally accessible to all persons and residents of Oregon, and that financial inequity should not stand in the way of anyone pursuing a quality education. It also only seems fair that someone making 20K per year after graduating in say a social service field should not pay as much as someone making $150 or more per year after their law or business degree.

3/13/2013 18:40

I graduated with over 30k in student loans. I graduated "Summa Cum Laude." I Nobody told me that I wouldn't be able to land a job that pays enough to make my loan payments and not having to worry each single month how to make ends meet. As it looks right now, I will owe student loans forever. I did everything I was supposed to do. I tried to live the American Dream. I tried to better my life by getting a good education. Now, I owe money and my life hasn't improved economically whatsoever.

This sounds like a great idea!

3/13/2013 18:45

It's important to focus on future generations and giving them the opportunities necessary to compete in this constant changing world.

3/13/2013 18:46

Something has to give! We need to fortify for the future by producing a steady stream of educated youth. Current tuition/loans threaten our ability to compete in the future.

3/13/2013 18:46

Too much debt has dragged me down and limited advancement in life. I owe $40k in loans and I live at home because i cannot afford anything else

3/13/2013 18:46

House Bill 2838, or Pay It Forward - What a fantastic idea! The Oregon and US Education system is constantly under fire and often one of the first sectors in line to take the hit by market fluctuations and budget cuts. It must be agreed by all gathered and especially our respective leaders in our Oregon State House of Legislature that Education is sacred. Education is a moral good, a measure by which our civilization, prosperities, cultural harmonies and wellbeing are measured. Education prepares our leaders of tomorrow. Affordability or loan debt accumulation should not be the deterrent. If education prepared us to be where we are today as leaders, it is our intellectual duty to redesign its dependency on failing systems and enthusiastically welcome HB 2838 to the stamp of the law and daily life. I personally will not benefit from this bill if passed as I already have a debt I am currently repaying, but this very fact frees me from any skewed opinions about its inherent brilliance. And yes we have the minds in Oregon to design it and show to the nation it can work!

3/13/2013 18:47

Even though I make a good salary as an RN, my husband hasn't been able to find a job since he graduated with an agricultural degree. While supporting us and our two little boys, and paying both of our student loan debts, almost everything I make goes to our bills. We are going to have this huge weight on us for decades to come. It would be amazing to be able to save money for the future and for our children's futures. We already have the debt, but if we could help the next generations prevent this same problem, we could be in a better financial situation as a state.

3/13/2013 18:47

3/13/2013 18:47

It seems we can apply new ideas to help everyone that wants to go to college to be able to do so without going to debtors prison. The higher the educational mean in our state the more able we will be as a society to address the future problems, solutions and technologies of our country and state.

3/13/2013 18:48

3/13/2013 18:48

Because education should be considered a right, not a privilege.

3/13/2013 18:49

For myself, for my daughter, and for all of the Oregonians who work their tails off for a better life but just can't get there. I graduated in 2011 with a Bachelor's in Art History, and have had trouble finding employment that pays a living wage, despite years in the workforce. I would do anything to have training in the healthcare industry but since I am a post-bacc, cannot get aid to help cover the even too-expensive community colleges. I am strong, industrious, able bodied, and intelligent but have fallen behind since my skills do not match those industries that pay a livable wage in this economy. Should I be condemned to debt and a low wage job because my country cannot provide it's people training in employable fields? Other countries do that, right?

Education in academics, the technical and applied sciences, as well as the manufacturing arts are ReQUIRED in order to make a decent living and progressive sustainable society in America. Even current industries are demanding higher education, indeed over-qualification, for most of their jobs, and at no higher wage. If "success" in this country demands or requires higher ed, then the businesses and the country must pave the way for its people to succeed. Road-building, I think one could call it.

3/13/2013 18:52

3/13/2013 18:52

In order to have a future, students need the basic requirements of higher education, but if this investment has lower returns due to high levels of debt, then it cripples our future generation of leaders, visionaries, and entrepreneurs.

We need educated and qualified workers who can afford to pay their bills. It doesn't give them much motivation to go through all of this education only to be saddled with such a high and lengthy loan that they cannot pay it, and then have credit problems that mean they cannot get a home or a car. It seems counterproductive to go to school currently. Let's change that so people have a reason to try and a way to actually afford schooling.

3/13/2013 19:05

I am currently saddled with extensive debt from higher education. The debt is a barrier to the American dream. Programs like this can help make the dream a reality again.

3/13/2013 19:11

As a graduate with a four-year and later a two-year degree, I know first-hand how rough student debt can be. I know it's too late for me, but I definitely support a plan that would curb student debt and make things much easier financially for graduates. It has been 3 years since I graduated with my 2 year degree, and even though I have a good job now, I am still struggling to balance my student loan debt with all of my other bills. This "Pay It Forward" system would have been a great help to me.

3/13/2013 19:13

Free high education will bring a new generation of well-educated minds to Oregon, and keep them here. Better education means better jobs with better pay, which means more income to the state as a whole. And by waiving debts, this will free money to be spent on local businesses and projects.

3/13/2013 19:18

This is an excellent approach. If we take a $50,000 a year income and grant 3%, that's $1,500 a year. Carry that out to 20 years and the student has paid $30,000 which is approximately what a 4-year degree might cost. In the meantime, the fund grows to secure the American dream of opportunity and real chance for prosperity for everyone. Wall Street should have no business in higher education. That place is personal and reserved for students and their professors - only.

I am wracking up mountains of debt - this after losing 10's of thousands in the crash to financial institutions that got billions in bail-out. I'll be repaying my student loans until I'm at least 55 - when I should be saving for my retirement - I'm disgruntled and struggle financially so badly for one of my age and experience - YES, please support this bill so I can look forward to re-entering the workforce and NOT having to utilize my desperately needed paycheck to pay for student loans, and instead invest in retirement and my future.....Many are in the exact same boat as mine - How about billing banks and S&L's that received all of our tax $ due to THEIR negligence and risky behaviors - THEY should pay it forward to the taxpayers by investing in our future and Current post-graduation monthly student loan payments greatly inhibit our ability to progress financially and adversely affect our stress levels and general happiness. How are recent college graduates supposed to contribute meaningfully to the national economy if we are barely keeping our heads above water each month? Many of us would like to buy a house or a newer vehicle and cannot because of monthly student loan payments. There are thousands, perhaps millions of us out there who could contribute to consumer spending more freely and with great impact if we had a better funding system for higher education. Education is our salvation. K-12 education is free. A higher education is just as vitally important to the welfare of this country. I would argue that this petition should go a step further and offer an out to those who have already graduated and struggle to make monthly payments on their loans. I would happily give up 3% and perhaps even a bit more of my current income if my student loans were forgiven. I could use that money going towards student loans for vacations, a car, a house, retirement, etc.

3/13/2013 19:41

Look, it only makes sense. Students MUST go to universities or jc's to get ahead otherwise we will have undereducated, unemployable workforce of under 30 year olds, that will not be hireable at anything other than Walmart or other low paying jobs. Sadly the reality is that when student's must pay high loans for only 4 year education (higher than $30K) we are creating a class of indentured employees, perhaps for life. Bottom Line? SLAVES.

3/13/2013 19:42

3/13/2013 19:42

Higher Education is our greatest investment as a society. It must be easily available to all.

3/13/2013 19:46

3/13/2013 19:46

Please help to make the pursuit of higher education a sane endeavor! This is a very reasonable idea that can promote easier access to pathways for getting ahead. There are too many people profiting off of students who are swimming in debt and sadly, it is not the students! All we've ever wanted was that chance to continue climbing up the ladder without the heavy weight of financial doom on our backs.

3/13/2013 19:55

We need to make education a reality for everyone without making us debt slaves to Wall Street. We need to take back education in a way that is sustainable.

If it can be this easy to provide higher education for all Oregon kids, why would we NOT do it? I believe that education is inherently valuable for reasons that have nothing to do with getting a better job.

3/13/2013 20:12

Today's job market requires at least a four year college degree therefore that surpasses what the high school ed previously provided. ALL OR kids need this!

3/13/2013 20:34

We can't afford an uneducated workforce and electorate and young people can't afford the cost of their necessary education. We need to do this in a smarter way.

3/13/2013 20:34

3/13/2013 20:34

Student loans are designed to keep people on the hook and paying for years. We have NO SAY in how these are structured, but must use them if we are to "have a better life than our parents", which we don't because we are burdened by this unfair debt.

3/13/2013 20:40

3/13/2013 20:42

We need to undercut Wall Street in any way possible while helping students and the USA in the long-run. Higher education is essential to quality of life. Debt is ruining graduates' quality of life, causing hopelessness and depression in the extreme.

3/13/2013 20:44

3/13/2013 20:44

My Son needs to get a higher education in order to survive in this new world we live in. He has no desire to because he doesn't look forward to a mound of debt and a lousy job at graduation. This whole Country needs to follow suit. We need to pass this now! This is the best investment we can make for all of our futures.

3/13/2013 20:44

3/13/2013 20:49

Because I have a kid who in 20 years will not be able to afford the continually skyrocketing costs to go to collage. All of the population needs to be educated and not then be slave to make intrest payments for 30 years lining wall streets pockets.

Hi, I am a college graduate with my master's degree in teaching and am a 2nd year teacher trying to pay back $100K of student loans. I am now trying to buy my first home and am being limited because of the $525 monthly student loan payments I make. I teach at a low income school and most students are in what used to be my same position- wanting to go to college, but with no money to pay for it. Should they have to be burdened with student debt? or choose not to go to college because they don't want to have student loan debt? We need to change how we handle college costs so we can encourage more students to attend college and pull themselves out of poverty.
Thank you, Ellen Maiden

3/13/2013 21:21

3/13/2013 21:23

Encouraging higher education will have the advantage of encouraging businesses to locate here and help produce badly needed jobs in Oregon. It worked that way in California.

3/13/2013 21:23

3/13/2013 21:24

3/13/2013 21:24

This plan would encourage good job hunting activities afterwards and higher credit scores. Get the lenders out of the equation. Because I don't want other students to be burdened with large student loans like our daughter.

3/13/2013 21:25

3/13/2013 21:25

Education is important for future leaders and workers, it should be difficult to get

3/13/2013 21:26

I've been paying $500-$600 a month for 7 years on my student loans (about $42,000 total), and have only reduced my total balance by $20,000. I'll be in my 50's before I get any relief, and that was just for a nearly-useless Bachelor's degree. Debt-free higher education would have given me the chance to own my own home, have children, and contribute more to the economy, rather than lining the pockets of Sallie Mae shareholders.

3/13/2013 21:28

This is an excellent way to ensure and affordable path through college for all Oregon's children. What could be better? Because no one should have to owe $125,000 for a Bachelors. (My loans plus interest)

3/13/2013 21:29

3/13/2013 21:29

Education is not as expensive as ignorance. This would be an investment in the future strength of Oregon

3/13/2013 21:33

3/13/2013 21:33

3/13/2013 21:35

The amount of money owed by students after they have completed college and still unable to obtain good paying jobs is a deterrent to higher education. If Oregon wants to make a real difference in aligning education from 0-21 yrs., I urge to support this ground breaking bill.

3/13/2013 21:55

3/13/2013 21:56

Debt free for students of Oregon at all grade levels! Include relief of back debts owed and free up the educated to work rebuilding the country instead of lining the pockets of banks and collection agencies! Support the American Dream access to a life with liberty and the pursuit of happiness!

3/13/2013 22:05

To prevent Oregon from having an uneducated, unimaginative, uncreative, ill-informed, incompetent workforce. If anything is ever going to happen anywhere, it will require educated people. We should PAY students to go to school, not penalize them with debt, or restrict them for economic reasons. College has become unattainable to most, and unreasonable to many more. Thousands of dollars of debt, before ever getting a job, is an unreasonable burden and potential students are as wise to avoid this trap as credit card debt.

3/13/2013 22:19

3/13/2013 23:06
3/13/2013 23:07

Higher education should be available for anybody who wishes to pursue it. In order for people to gain better employment, often one of the minimum requirements is an undergrad degree; sometimes a master's. We need to do something for all our ex-students that have big school debts and no jobs.

3/13/2013 23:08

3/13/2013 23:09

I support this bill, tuition is so high now that I am worried about ever being out of debt. I am older and going back to college late in life. I think its beneficial to all students. 3/13/2013 23:33

Because it makes sense for a progressive state to take progressive measures for the well-being of our city. It is fundamental that a change be made in access to higher education. There will only be a wider divide between rich and poor if we continue on our current path, and that is ruinous for all of us.

3/13/2013 23:36

There is always a better creative solution especially when the current plan is not working. Please support a more creative solution to spiraling student loan debt.

3/13/2013 23:37

It is so unfair that most of us got our educations, and the benefits that they provided, at a time when someone could actually work their way through a state college. We need to make that available to students now. Notwithstanding Ronald Reagan's spiteful success in removal of that benefit for young people in California for daring to protest the Vietnam war, failing to provide affordable higher ed to the working poor and middle class is just stupid from the perspective of having a prepared workforce

3/13/2013 23:38

The current system is unrealistic and places a heavy burden on young people who have no idea what their future will be. I have suffered crushing depression because of my impossible debt. Please change the system. Thank you.

Our student debt causes us a financial hardship for an extensive period of time beyond graduation, for many of our older students it lasting beyond retirement which is an unacceptable way to treat us hardworking students. Previous generations did not have to have such great of a financial burden just to have a career.

3/14/2013 0:57

As a recent graduate with $60,000 in student debt (even though i did receive some help from family, which many students do not), i want to make ways available for future students to not have to go through all the incredible stress and hardship involved with leaving college with a huge amount of debt. Anne-Marie Claire I support this bill because being a student I know the burden this presents to all of us. It would be nice to have an affordable education

3/14/2013 1:13

I feel it should be free, just like high school and elementary...this is one step closer. It's better than nothing. Pay It Forward is a perfect name for this.

3/14/2013 1:14

Currently I am paying more than 10% of my AGI in student loans, I would gladly pay 6% if it was going to students and not to my personal debt

My daughter and her friends need to afford receiving an education so that they can give their full potential to the good of society. For profit loan corporations are predatory and our young people deserve better than indebtedness to predators. This way, monthly payments go to the good of society instead of to plutocratic predators who monopolize the system with faulty products that lack consumer rights protections.

My wife is just a few months away from getting her masters degree from PSU. While I have a good job in the trades, there is no guarantee that she will find good employment in her chosen field. The fact is, we are probably going to be saddled with her debt from seven years of schooling for several decades, even after we retire!

3/14/2013 3:32

Many years ago, I was valedictorian of my high school, going on to college to study math and physics. Now, because of the overwhelming prospect of massive college debt, I remain in educational limbo with an incomplete college education, uncertain if I will ever be able to get even a 4-year degree, let alone the doctorate I once considered. This Pay It Forward bill may be the only way I could realistically go forward with my education. And not only could this help Oregonians like me, Oregon could help lead the nation to real and significant reform.

3/14/2013 4:05

Our future is our educated children. If we can't give them a real and affordable education, we have no future.

As a student and a parent, I believe education is vital to our growth as individuals, and as a society. The cost of higher education is prohibitive to many of those whom would best be served and give back to their community. Alternatives must exist to find college funding for everyone who wants a quality education.

3/14/2013 5:44

3/14/2013 6:03

Education - especially higher education - is a fundamental human right, not a privilege. As a current college student myself, I believe anyone should be able to access good education at no cost to them.

3/14/2013 8:32

This would be ground breaking legislation. Can you imagine the impact this would have on Oregon students? The burden of student loans looming over students would be eliminated. This would change so many lives for the better. Please support this crucial bill. Thank you.

In order get a good job capable of paying all bills, rent/mortgage, and be able to raise a family without having to sacrifice in this economy, one MUST have a college degree to even be considered for most positions. The only problem there is, in order to pay for the schooling required for those jobs, one must already have the money to be able to pay for the cost of school, and that is an ongoing catch 22. With higher education for ALL, perhaps we, as citizens of Oregon, can better not only ourselves, but our state and economy as well.

I have now have a B.S., and a crippling debt that puts me at a larger fiscal disadvantage than at any other time in my life. The way our financial aid system works now, higher education serves to reinforce the divide between the haves and the have-nots. Please support debt-free higher education, so education can once again be a social equalizer.

The future of our country depends on the education of it's citizens. One should not have to live their lives in debt because they seek education.

3/14/2013 14:07

Please support the proposed pay it forward, HB2838 bill for tuition higher education.

3/14/2013 14:07

Please, let's stop this trend of debt slavery. Let us bid farewell to the "corporatocracy" that has taken over our lives, and once again, interact as real human beings. Let's bring common sense back into our society and state. Please support debt-free higher education for Oregon public college and university students and stable funding for Oregon public higher education. Vote yes on HB 2838.

3/14/2013 14:08

This is so rad. I was able to pay off my loans after college, but I was lucky. So many of my friends are struggling with loans that it doesn't even make sense for them to get a higher paying job, because all their extra income will go to Sallie Mae.

3/14/2013 14:12

3/14/2013 14:14

I support this legislature because education should really be free, yet not everyone is willing to do it for free, so this would be the next and greatest thing to it! PASS IT PLEASE!

3/14/2013 14:17

As the Student Body President of Portland Community College I hear student's concerns everyday about growing tuition and student debt. Allow us to institute a system that will enable students today to pay it forward and ensure access to higher ed for generations to come.

3/14/2013 14:23

i am a student and I struggle daily with the fear and anxiety of whether pursuing higher education will be worth the debt i have incurred.

3/14/2013 14:25

Educating young people is a good investment however you look at it. The concept of paying forward will apply equally much in that these generations will take care of those that came before them, as it will to allowing them higher education without being crushed by debt. It is a no-brainer and a sound strategy for our common futures. Students are our future and shouldn't be crushed by debt.

3/14/2013 14:32

3/14/2013 14:41

Debt free higher education will help everyone- not only as the vocational training which a baccalaureate degree has become, and which is sorely lacking otherwise, but also in encouraging innovative, bright students to continue on to graduate programs, which will allow them to improve society as a whole. Please make this small investment today. It will help tomorrow be better for many people.

3/14/2013 14:42

3/14/2013 14:49

Higher education gives us a competitive edge but escalating costs are keeping many people out of college and burdening others with huge debt loads after graduation. HB2838 is a low cost/no cost way to help reduce the cost of an education.

3/14/2013 14:59

Students are currently graduating from college so far in debt that it threatens the quality of the rest of their lives if they try to pay it back.

3/14/2013 15:01

All students should be able to pursue higher education, regardless of their financial status.

3/14/2013 15:02

It's time for us to take care of our economy. Creating a program like this will allow more Oregonians to succeed and pull us faster out of recession.

3/14/2013 15:05

Pay it forward!

3/14/2013 15:07

Ain't nobody got time for debt.

3/14/2013 15:08

3/14/2013 15:10

This just makes good sense. Though I think the state should still pay into higher ed. It benefits everyone and is a common good.

3/14/2013 15:12

3/14/2013 15:14

Remember when going to college used to be for the purpose of getting ahead in life? I don't. Student loan debt is out of control and it MUST be addressed. Don't let the next generation of college graduates be burdened by continually increasing debt.

3/14/2013 15:25

3/14/2013 15:40

My daughter is 29 and has had to work 2 jobs to support herself and pay to go to community college because she knows that student loans are nasty. She has a little more than 2 years worth of credits. It seems that only the rich can really get a higher education reasonably. HELP!!!!

3/14/2013 15:43

I am burdened by massive debt, and I don't want future students to have to suffer the same thing.

3/14/2013 15:43

3/14/2013 15:44

3/14/2013 15:54

We NEED to find a better way for people to fund a college education. The current system is unworkable for too many people, and puts us under the thumb of the financial industry, almost for life, in some cases.

3/14/2013 16:00

My husband and I have had over $100,000 worth of student debt. This debt has kept us from seeing the financial benefits of our degrees compared to our friends who did not have debt and were able to use that money to buy cars, houses, travel, invest, and save. We have no retirement savings. Student loans are a very effective way to maintain class separation despite access to higher education for non-wealthy students. It has effectively "kept us in our place". That needs to change if true progress will ever happen in the US.

3/14/2013 16:04

I am a community college teacher who was forced to take on $22K in debt for a masters degree just so I could continue doing to work I've been doing for 20 years. How am I supposed to send my kids to college when I have to pay for my own?

3/14/2013 16:12

3/14/2013 16:15

3/14/2013 16:17

I struggle with the fact that I am in constant debt because I want to better myself and get the education I need. This would truly help me as well as many others struggling with tuition fees.

3/14/2013 16:20

Higher Education has become so expensive that even if families can support their children with some of their finances--they still graduate with a huge amount of debt and possibly without a job.

Affordable education is proven to improve the welfare of all. The current situation is shameful. It needs to change because it is not sustainable. I got an affordable education at Portland State College in the 60s. We need to get back to that model. My daughter is starting college this fall, don't know where yet, but the numbers scare me....

3/15/2013 2:22
3/15/2013 2:23

many students graduating from high school feel that they cannot afford higher education and then gets stuck in a minimum wage job. College tuition has become increased so much that middle class parents cannot help their sons/daughters to help pay for tuition and extra fees that colleges bill and are not covered by financial aid. The more our young people are educated the better our economy grows. Since our son graduated from high school in 2006, tuition doubled as well as interest rates

3/15/2013 12:38

3/15/2013 12:47

My student debt load was crushing. If Oregon had implemented Pay It Forward when I was thinking about college, I would have been more likely to stay in state and fund education for future Oregonians.

3/15/2013 12:51

Dear Legislature, both I and the state of Oregon have spent thousands of dollars on my education. Were I to live and teach in Oregon, my home state, that investment would be returned to the community. Unfortunately, because of my crushing student loans, I will have to go abroad to Germany, where far better teaching positions have been offered to me. I love Portland, but I am not going to sell myself into indentured servitude in order to live there. By enacting a reasonable plan that does not punish me for advanced training, a plan like HB 2838, I would reconsider my options, and the community of Oregon would not lose a valuable asset and investment. Please stop scaring away your PhD graduates and allow us to reinvest our valuable training and expertise in our own communities instead of putting our energies into the unnecessary and criminal horror of paying student loans to the bandits that exploit wallstreet. Thanks.

I recently returned to school as an adult student. Several years after graduation most of my classmates had not found work. How will they ever pay off their college bills, much less become contributing tax payers? America is only as strong as its weakest citizens...let's strengthen our workforce, strengthen our economy and strengthen our country!

3/16/2013 12:27

3/16/2013 12:50

Our students deserve the very best start that we can provide them. In Europe, Japan and the rest of the industrialized world their countries PAY their promising students which cover all college costs. We are number 1 ? I don't think so.

3/16/2013 12:59

News 2 years ago, Intel wanted to hire 40 Oregon new graduate engineers: they could not find them. Education is economic growth. The student we ignore today will be the ignoramus putting our head in the toilet at the old people's home tomorrow.

It provides more opportunities to educate more future productive members of society and it gives a well-deserved break to those who do decide to go hundreds of thousands of dollars in debt simply to make an honest living doing something worthwhile

Education is a human right.

3/16/2013 16:48

I have 2 children who went to college in Oregon. My daughter graduated from high school in 2003 Valedictorian. Went to Willamette and received her MBA. After 5 years we both had 20 thousand+ $'s worth of school loans. Parent plus loan for us. The interest on these loans are low which makes the payment more affordable. My son also did well in school and chose to go to U of O in 2008. He graduated with his BA in Psychology and is starting his PHD program in the fall. $$$$. We combined, owe over $40,000. The interest on these loans is much higher which makes the loan payment double what the earlier loan is. We wanted to help them, but now we are concerned about retirement. We were both laid off in 2009. My husband was laid off for 21/2 years which really changed our retirement outlook. We are both working now and live to pay bills. We only owe school loans and our mortgage. We feel fortunate.

3/16/2013 17:19

Combined student debt is higher than credit card debt. In a rough economy where being fiscally mobile is difficult, most are not able to keep up with student debt payments. This has a crippling effect on the economy, and the general welfare of citizens. The pursuit of higher education should not be a question of whether one's social class is high enough to allow for it.

3/16/2013 21:19

3/16/2013 22:51

We need a change in how we pay for our education. How can students that graduate from our State Universities carry on a burden of out of control student debt? We can't - the current system is putting us all in the poor house before we even get a chance for a real job.

3/16/2013 22:55

3/17/2013 13:14

I'm in debt for life and working retail with a baby and will never be able to afford the career I'm good at.

3/17/2013 13:56

I went back to school as a single mother to help my family become self sufficient. I borrowed a modest sum of money which, with interest & fees, I will be paying off for the next decade or more while living paycheck to paycheck with little opportunity to spend within my community. The flow of money ever upwards has left our economy in shreds, more money in the hands of common people is good for families, economy and job creation. Tax cuts don't create jobs, needs for services do.

3/17/2013 15:48

Let's put children first - they are our greatest resources... My son is shackled with a suffocating student loan, and he struggles to make a living as a chiropractor...

My daughter recently earned her RN degree. SHE pays a total of $700/month in loan fees and will end up paying 3 times what she borrowed. She is unable to pay ahead. This is crazy. And she is a lucky one because she got a job. My husband and I paid back a college debt, but the fee was only 3% which is more doable and we were able to pay ahead if we could. I support debt free higher ed.

3/18/2013 22:14

Because as an ex-student, I can honestly say that between the LARGE amount of debt that I was forced to accept to go to school in the first place, and the inability to talk to ANYONE from the counseling dept. I dropped out. Sure there are other reasons, but I don't want to go back to school until I've both paid off the debt I already have AND have made enough to pay for myself to go through school. But that's not going to happen for a long time, because without access to higher learning, individuals like me can't find work for much above minimum wage. Which means no matter what, I'd be starving myself just paying the debts, that's not even trying to save money on top of everything. All because I went to school when they were cutting the grants and scholarships I qualified for.

3/19/2013 8:50

We need more educated Oregonians. We don't need our children in debt and feeling hopeless just because they have a college degree.

This is a fantastic idea. It is similar to payment schemes in other countries that relate the final cost of education to earnings. Students would be free of the current stifling burden of debt that they may never earn enough to repay, and would understand exactly what repayment was expected. This would make them willing to take risks in their future jobs - start a new business, take a job that paid less but had great social benefit - risks that they currently can't afford to take. I strongly support this progressive vision. Let's take the lead as a state and show the US that this can be done.

Interest on student loans has become financially incapacitating! Current enrollment-figures show that college applications are falling to shockingly low levels. Schools have even begun to close, or must now radically curtail their course offerings or eliminate departments, thus making them less viable as educational institutions...merely delaying their closing by a few years, as their reputations plummet. We'll soon be a nation of semi-literates! If you are worried at all about the future of America, you will consider the wisdom of this bill and vote YES!

Promising, hard working students should not have to start out their working lives saddled with extraordinary debt. We of previous generations certainly didn't have to do that. It's not their fault that near criminal manipulations of the credit system have been implemented in the last couple of decades.

I currently have a $52,000 + student debt that I cannot repay. This is because I teach as an adjunct instructor at the University of Oregon, only making Approx. $1,500 per month. I am only allowed to teach 1 (4 credit) course per term so that the university doesn't have to pay benefits to me. I love teaching and that is why I have sacrificed pay for teaching undergraduate students. PLEASE do something so that individuals like me do not have to take on such debt in order to do what we love, teaching. I believe we are under valued and the university system is taking advantage of those of us who love the profession. We are doing great things in education for our students. We need to be acknowledged and appreciated both in validation and pay. Loan forgiveness would be another way in which to show appreciation for the sacrifice we make in order to teach.

There are not enough jobs and the jobs that are available, are given to people with "experience." What happened to the American Dream? You work hard and you can be successful! Ya right! 4/2/2013 18:16

Higher education is becoming harder and harder to justify its cost. I know many people who did what their parents and society told them to do and went to school to make themselves more employable. Unfortunately the cost of that education is so big that the pay often does not cover the debt and interest after college is finished and leaves young workers unable to pay to live. If we continue down this path then we will loose qualified, high skilled, and competitive job markets.

I borrowed $25,000 for 4 years of college. But because I couldn't pay back on time now 20 years later I owe $130,000 because of penalties and interest. And that is from government loans not some predatory lender. That should be illegal.

4/2/2013 18:20

Oregon students deserve an opportunity to attend higher education without being indebted to increasingly predatory student loan lenders. This program would also allow graduates to pursue their dream jobs rather than taking a higher paying job just so they can pay down their loans. It's a win-win for the state and its student-residents.

If I were to pay out-of-pocket for these degrees I would owe over $100,000. I am lucky enough to have employer reimbursement for a portion of this cost, but will still have well over $40,000 of additional student loan debt upon graduation. Since even entry-level jobs are now requiring degrees, every person who wishes to obtain their college degree should have a chance to do so without incurring a lifelong debt.

4/2/2013 18:37

Now is a time to make access to higher education MORE possible, not less accessible. Help us help young and old people alike access new knowledge at a time when new ideas are sorely needed to solve the world's challenging questions of over-population, misuse of natural resources, and redistribution of food to create food security for all. At a time when fewer jobs are available, more students could be accessing the education needed to move forward by creating new kinds of income. Let us study and we'll pay back what we've received with dividends beyond your wildest dreams! Thank you! Sincerely yours, Dana Cunningham Anderson

4/2/2013 18:37

Please, this is what students need. I am tens of thousands of dollars in debt - and this is only the second year of college. I need a Masters degree, or higher, to work in the profession I'm interested in. The idea that we have mortgaged the education of those Oregonians wishing to get one is contrary to the best interests of our middle class or our economy. Runaway interest is the bane of an educated and viable Oregon populace and strong economy.

I support this because I had to take loans in order to go to school. I got extremely sick a little over a year ago and had to take time off of school. Now, still not having completed my degree, and still trying to get better, I'm supposed to be paying my loans back. It's impossible because I'm still not well enough to work. By the time I'm done with school and able to establish a career, it still won't make a difference because of the interest from my loans. I refuse to take more loans for school because of this and finishing school is going to be extremely difficult because it's so expensive. If something like this passed, it would guarantee I'm able to get through school, establish a career, and be a productive part of society - instead of struggling to pay for school the rest of my life. Without people being able to pay for school, this country is going to fall apart in the future.

are up to their eyeballs in debt. This looms over them making it very difficult to move forward---- grow their business, buy a home, and on and on. The interest on the debt they have is completely outrageous--- when you are trying to live how can one pay down $1000/ month on a very large bill and ever expect to see the end of it! These are our young people who went to school trusting that their would be jobs for them, that they were doing the right thing. I believe this is a situation that has never been before in our U.S. history, isn't that correct? It is shameful and I would imagine in the eyes of those around the world who are paying attention, a situation that they would never imagine happening in the United States. We believe in education, we need an educated population since so many of the middle manufacturing jobs that were on the job trained, are now in other countries. We as a whole have committed a grave error in our judgment. We have allowed those lending money to our future- which has turned into a huge debt- a lot of freedom by not capping the interest they could charge these students-- those working hard to better

I am fortunate that I don't have thousands of dollars in student loans, because my parents were paid well enough to afford my tuition. However, my situation is rare. I have countless friends and colleagues that are saddled with student loan debt-- all of whom are under the age of 30. My significant other has over $30,000 in debt right now. This is an issue that will affect my generation for the rest of our lives. Because of this debt, several friends of mine are not getting married for fear of assuming the other's debt. Because of student loans, we cannot afford buying a home, so we are forced to rent. Because of this debt, I will personally have children at a much later age than anticipated due to my significant other's debt. The Pay it Forward bill is an excellent idea for continuing to encourage higher education, while lowering the burden placed on young adults-- and the impact that loans have on the trajectory of their lives. I urge you to push HB 2838 out of committee and support it until passage. My generation's success depends on it, and our state's success depends on it.

It would be good because it would make the cost of services go down everywhere, because the person that just got out of college would not have to pay back a huge loan. for instance a Medical student gets out of college and owes 200,000 dollars for medical school so he has no choice but to charge big bucks for his services even if he would love to be able to treat everyone even the poorest he can't because he has this huge debt hanging over his head.

I would encourage you to check out the way Australians provide higher education to their citizens. School is free (paid by taxes because it is not a for profit business). They provide students stipends to live off while they study. Students do not come out of college $60,000 or more in debt because of school costs and INTEREST, instead the money is pooled back in and students begin to make payments when they are finally earning enough to do so. Education is IMPORTANT for America to be competitive on a global level. Put citizens first!

4/2/2013 20:23

Student loan debt totals are unsustainable, and completely misaligned with wages for college educated and master's level workers. We need to support a system in which higher education is rewarded and feasible.

I went back to get my masters and my husband was working on his BA. Now we have student loans and can't get better jobs because of our age.

It's just WAY too expensive to go to college for a higher education, which is almost required for a decent paying job for middle income and lower income families. Work towards equalizing for everyone to get a college education that wants one. Money shouldn't be the reason not to go to college.

4/2/2013 21:35

My family's finances are currently held hostage by a $500+ monthly student loan bill. That's money that would be much better spent here in Oregon, rather than being shipped off to the shareholders of Sallie Mae. Give future students a chance to get a good education and we'll all be able to enjoy the fruits of their labor.

4/2/2013 22:24

My daughter and my students cannot carry the debt load that is required now. We tell our kids they are our future and we make that an impossible dream especially when many of us parents are barely making it. We open visas to foreigners and will not offer the opportunities to afford education and training. What is wrong with this picture? If you can't see it you shouldn't be in the legislature.

Make this an even playing field for everyone involved. Thank you.

There is the opportunity to breed a new generation of innovators, economic stimulators, educators, farmers etc. to really be sustainable. I am 28, married with two kids under the age of 3, my husband and I have 50,000 college loan debt and we both still have a year to go before degrees, we struggle to save & invest to someday own land, we struggle to farm and maintain our livelihood- paying loans for 10 more years while we juggle loans for a house someday? I support debt-free higher education, because the way things are now, you could be paying your debt off for most of your life! What if your education got you the job that you always wanted, but it wasn't all that fiscally lucrative?? Your Masters Degree is something you'll be paying for for a long time to come.

4/3/2013 0:47

I support debt free higher education because it is a more sustainable infrastructure than what currently exists. My husband and I owe more on our student loans than we will be able to pay off in our lifetime. Our student loan debt keeps us from being fully middle class - which is ironic since we both hold MAs. With this economy and the skyrocketing tuition costs - don't forget the 7+% APR on the loans! - higher education has become less of a road to the middle class and more of a lifelong financial burden.

College has become much like high school in regard to getting a good job. Like high school, a student should not have to incur debt to get a diploma. This is not just for the benefit of the student, but for our society as a whole.

4/3/2013 1:15

I'm a former professor who went to college late in life. I'm 60 years old now. I've seen both sides of this. My own debt at an adult returning student in the early 90s that grows with each year rather than decrease and as a professor that saw students go deeply in debt. Please sign HB 2838.

4/3/2013 1:19

College grads shouldn't have to start their lives saddled with 20 or more years worth of debt. We are, sadly, one of the few developed nations that sees education as a privilege instead of the right it should be for every American.

4/3/2013 1:21

I am in upper management of a local non-profit. I work to make others' lives better and yet I live on a very low income to others in the private sector. I graduated in 2003 from graduate school with 80,000 in debt. I worked in my field for 6 years while starting a family. My income rarely covered my student loan so I paid when I could. I have been in deferment or forbearance for most of the time and my loan has increase by 12,000 due to interest. We are swimming in this debt and can't forsee a reasonable time in the future where my husband I have the extra $500/month to throw at my student loan. Our mortgage is high, our health care is $800/month and paying for family expenses puts us on the edge month to month. We try our best but the debt is so debilitating. Please do something so that others - an entire generation of middle class teens and twenty-somethings - aren't saddled with the incredible burden.
