Report Card on State Price Transparency Laws

March 18, 2013

Dear Colleagues,

As health care costs continue to rise, consumers are increasingly being required to take on a growing share. To underscore that point, the most recent survey by Mercer shows that close to two-thirds of all large employers offer a high deductible/high co-insurance health plan and that close to 20 percent of all commercially insured health plan members are enrolled in such plans. In this environment, it is only fair and logical to ensure that consumers have the necessary quality and price information to make informed decisions about where to seek health care. We have made progress sharing information about the quality of care, with organizations like Bridges to Excellence and The Leapfrog Group leading the way and federal and state governments getting in on the act. But with recent studies showing us that the price for an identical procedure within a market can vary seven-fold with no demonstrable difference in quality, price transparency is more important than ever.

While the private sector has made progress recently in making prices more available to consumers, there are still large gaps. States can play an important role in ensuring that consumers have access to both quality and price information by setting policies and implementing laws that advance transparency. The most comprehensive, consumer-friendly laws ensure ready access to information and data about a broad range of providers and services.

This Report Card on State Price Transparency Laws represents a joint effort between Catalyst for Payment Reform and the Health Care Incentives Improvement Institute to examine existing transparency laws in all 50 states and grade them, using well-defined criteria, on how well they support the information needs of consumers. The Methodology section of this report contains detail about these criteria.

We hope the Report Card will inform advocates, lawmakers and policy experts about today's best practices or what constitutes a top grade and, over time, generate improvements in public policies across the nation. American consumers deserve to have as much information about the quality and price of their health care as they do about restaurants, cars, and household appliances.

Sincerely,

Francois de Brantes, MS, MBA

I. METHODOLOGY

Catalyst for Payment Reform (CPR) and the Health Care Incentives Improvement Institute (HCI³) teamed up to review state-specific laws focused on price transparency for health care. The review generated two products: (1) a Report Card on State Price Transparency Laws and (2) a reference table that provides the details of the price transparency laws for each state.

CPR and HCI³ examined statutes and enacted bills using WestLawNext database, the National Conference on State Legislature’s website, and websites from various state legislatures, among other sources.

This research revealed a wide variety of state laws, with two common and critical elements: (1) varying levels of price information and (2) varying levels of public access to that information. Using that continuum, the research team established levels of price transparency and scoring criteria.

Levels of Price Transparency:

- Pricing information reported to the State only
- Pricing information available upon request by an individual consumer
- Pricing information available in a public report
- Pricing information available via a public website

Scoring Criteria:

- Scope of price: including charges, average charge, amount paid by the insurer and amount paid by the consumer (allowed amount)
- Scope of services covered under the law including: all medical services, inpatient services only, outpatient services only or the most common inpatient and outpatient services
- Scope of providers affected by the law including: hospitals, physicians, and surgical centers

Next, the team developed a scoring matrix (shown on following page), which allocates points based on level of price transparency and scope of price, services, and providers.

We evaluated each level of price transparency laws for scope of price, services, and providers. For example, if laws required pricing information (both paid amounts and charges) to be posted on a public website for all inpatient and outpatient services across all hospitals and providers, the state received full credit (50 out of 50 possible points) for that level of transparency. However, if the laws required only charges to be posted for the most common hospital discharges across a subset of hospitals, the state received substantially fewer points (15 out of 50 possible points). We calculated a score for each level separately and then summed for a total score out of 100 possible points. Every state received a cumulative additive score, taking into account all relevant laws passed in that state. Thus, grades do not reflect individual statutes or bills but rather each state’s overall legislative effort toward price transparency for health care.

The objective of this research was to determine how much pricing information each state makes accessible to the consumer. As a result, we allocated more points to states with laws requiring that information be posted on a public website than to those with provisions for releasing a public report, making the information available upon request, and only releasing the information to a specific state agency. Within each of the four levels of transparency, we allocated higher points to the broadest scope of price, services, and providers. For instance, releasing information specific to both what was paid for a service and what was charged for that service is more meaningful than only releasing what was charged. Charges often are of little value to consumers; the amount that is actually paid for the service, particularly the amount that the consumer is responsible for paying, provides the most actionable information. Similarly, releasing pricing information for all inpatient and outpatient services and for all hospitals and providers, rather than just the most common services or a subset of providers, is more meaningful to the consumer. As a result, we allotted a higher point value to the broader scope of services/providers.

While no state has implemented laws that meet all of our criteria, we graded on a curve to acknowledge the states with the most advanced laws to date. We anticipate that this curve will shift as transparency becomes more of a priority nationally. We based the letter grades on the following scores:

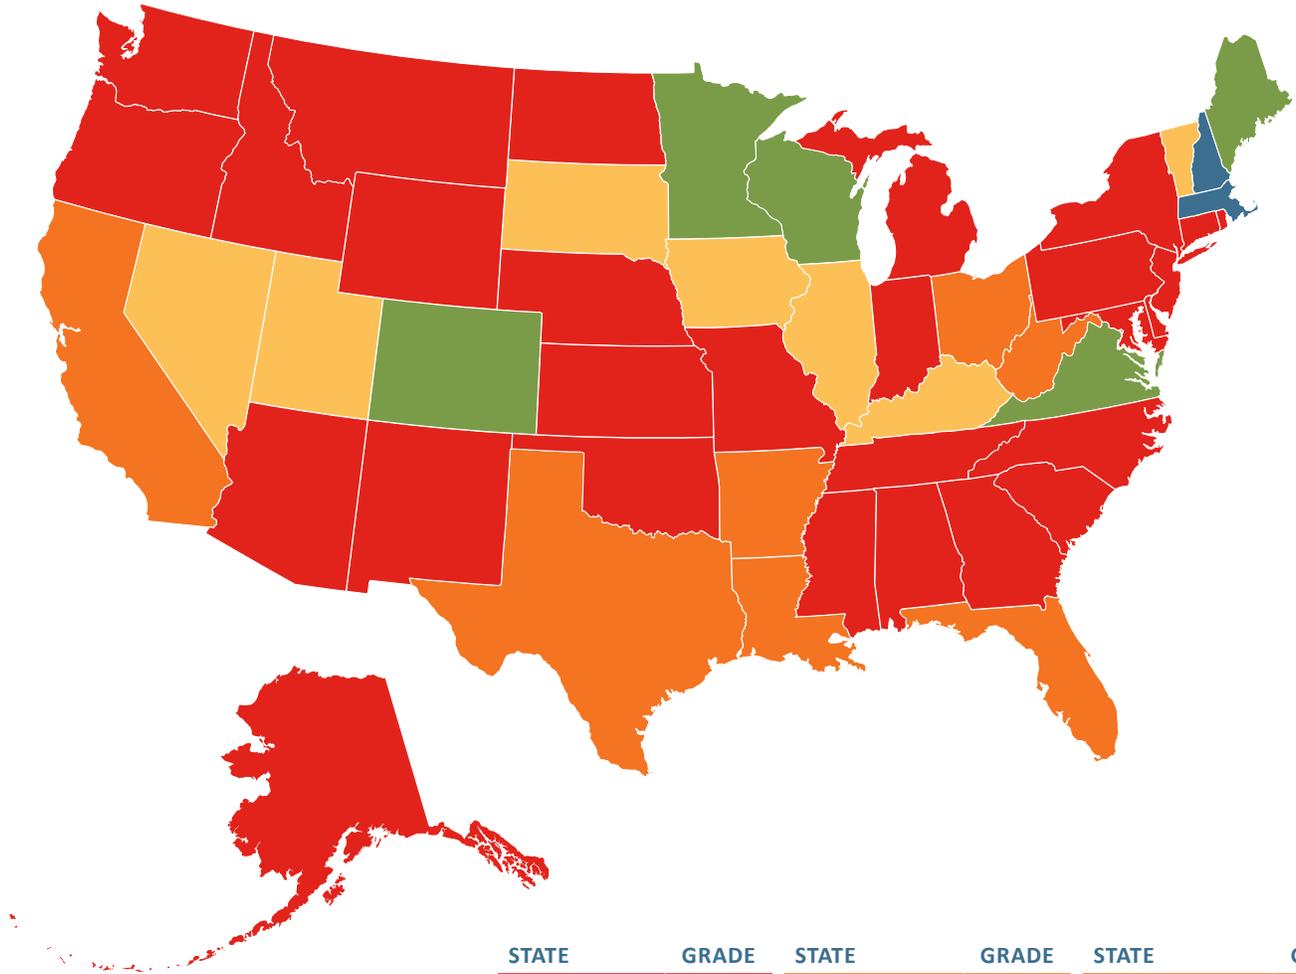

GRADE	FROM	TO
A	60%	100%
B	50%	59%
C	40%	49%
D	30%	39%
F	0%	29%

Limitations of this research include (1) variation in definitions among states and (2) accounting for the difference between laws and execution. Numerous permutations exist in the ways states define terms, such as the term “health care provider” or what is included in a “public report.” Many times these public reports, even when developed for the explicit purpose of enabling consumers to make informed decisions, do not contain the resolution of information needed to understand a specific provider’s price. Instead, public reports may contain aggregate or average charges for all providers for a specific service. Interested readers should refer to the statute text and example reports, which are hyperlinked in the “Reference Table.” The second limitation is accounting for the difference between laws and execution. A website intended for consumer use may be legislated but not easily identifiable or actionable, while in other cases, such a website was not legislated but nonetheless developed by the state or an independent party, often the state’s hospital association. These considerations were addressed on a state by state basis with all relevant details present or hyperlinked in the Reference Table.

Resources permitting, CPR and HCI³ will partner again next year to update this state report card. We anticipate that we will raise the scoring thresholds for each letter grade at that time.
