WHAT THE MEASURE DOES: Directs Department of Transportation to revoke a license for three years where the defendant is convicted of failure to perform the duties of a driver to injured persons under ORS 811.705, and court notes on record that a person sustained serious physical injury.

ISSUES DISCUSSED:

- Bridges the gap between failure to perform duties of driver where death is involved and anything else

EFFECT OF COMMITTEE AMENDMENT: No amendment.

BACKGROUND: Previously, ORS 809.409(3) provided for a one year revocation, unless the court noted on the record there was a death involved in the accident, then the revocation would be for five years. This creates a three year revocation when a court notes on the record that a person suffered serious physical injury. If the court makes no findings as to injury or death of a person involved in the accident, the statute would still require a one year revocation of driving privileges.
