Chair Greenlick and members of the House Health Care Committee:

The process of searching for a missing person, especially a vulnerable adult, changes dramatically from county to county and city to city depending on geography and population density. A one-size-fits-all, state-mandated search process does not serve anyone well. On the other hand, Sheriffs and Chiefs across the state strongly support a state mandate to take the time and care needed to create a well-thought-out, written policy on the methodology and process for conducting a search for vulnerable adults, as they are a population of missing persons needing special attention and training. These policies will include cooperative agreements between Sheriffs and Chiefs to best utilize specialty training and equipment when appropriate.

Senate Bill 1577 requires police agencies to create and adopt a policy for "Silver Alerts" when vulnerable adults are reported missing. It is good public policy and Oregon Chiefs and Sheriffs support it. Thank you.

The Oregon State Sheriffs' Association is comprised of Oregon's 36 elected county sheriffs. Sheriffs take seriously their charge to be "conservators of the peace." Their role in public safety is broad, including routine patrol, investigating crime, search and rescue, marine patrol, jails, community corrections, court security, civil services and the issuance of concealed handgun licenses.

The Oregon Association Chiefs of Police represents law enforcement leaders from over 130 local agencies throughout the State of Oregon including city, tribal and university police departments. The members of the OACP are committed to support and maintain the highest standards of public safety and police protection for the people who live, work and play in the State of Oregon. The mission of the association is to promote the highest ethical and professional standards in law enforcement at all levels throughout the state.
