Specifies measure does not apply to disclosure by Judicial Department or Department of Transportation. Declares emergency; effective on passage.

ISSUES DISCUSSED:EFFECT OF COMMITTEE AMENDMENT: No amendment.

BACKGROUND: It is Oregon policy that every person has a right to inspect any public record of any public body in the state, unless exempted. There are two categories of records that have exemptions to the disclosure requirement. ORS 192.501 provides general categories of records that are exempt unless the public interest requires disclosure. This extensive list includes records of active litigation, trade secrets, investigative reports in criminal proceedings, residential addresses of electors, personal information of donors to the Oregon University system or Oregon Health Science University, and Social Security Numbers. ORS 192.502 provides a list of records that are exempt from disclosure and generally do not have a public interest disclosure requirement. The address, Social Security numbers, dates of birth and telephone numbers of public body employees and volunteers fall within this category, but the exemption does not apply in cases where a person seeking the records shows by clear and convincing evidence that the public interest requires disclosure.

House Bill 3037 A removes the public interest disclosure based on clear and convincing evidence and extends the exemption to residential addresses, telephone numbers, personal cell phone numbers, personal email addresses, drivers license numbers, employer-issued identification card numbers, and emergency contact information. It extends the exemption to personal identifiers of home care workers, family child care providers, operators of child care facilities, and operators of adult foster homes. It requires a public body that has this information to redact personal information prior to releasing documents that were submitted in confidence. The measure exempts the Judicial Department and the Department of Transportation.
