

I am opposed to a hike in the aviation fuel tax in Oregon. General aviation is often a gateway to great paying jobs in the commercial aviation industry. Learning to fly is very expensive! Increasing these costs may price people out of this opportunity. Aviation fuel is already way too expensive. The FAA has promised a fix in three years. If Oregon continues to punish general aviation pilots will just fuel up across the border. Let's help pilots and general aviation instead. Promote ethanol free gas at airports and give pilots of small aircraft an option. Thanks for your help.
