

Dear Sir,

I am writing in strong opposition to HB3193 which would tax leaded aviation fuel in a punitive way. This would put an unnecessary burden on most general aviation pilots who already struggle with disproportionately high fuel prices. It is totally unnecessary because the FAA already has a testing program underway for alternative unleaded fuels, to be completed in 2018. In 3 years this tax will become obsolete. Surely you have better things to work on.

Jim Ott
Happy Valley, OR