

I feel that creating specific new and/or additional taxes on a very discreet group of consumers is unfair. Further, not requiring the same tax on jet fuel, fuel that is primarily used by corporations and wealthy private individuals, is outrageous.

Not everyone, and I would say the great majority of people who purchase leaded aviation fuel, are average, punch-the-clock working stiffs. Additional, targeted and annually-increasing taxes on moderate income families will further facilitate and expedite the end of General Aviation.

Respectfully,

Nikki and Alan Gardner
Powell Butte, OR