BACKGROUND: Apprenticeships are occupational career training that combines supervised on-the-job training experience with classroom instruction. Apprentices usually begin at half the salary of certified “journey” workers. Apprenticeship committees, made up of employee and employer representatives, operate apprenticeship programs. The waiting period for apprenticeships may last up to two years and is a highly competitive process. If a candidate is qualified, the candidate is added to a pool of eligible. As apprenticeship vacancies become available, candidates are selected from the pool. Typically, apprenticeships last two to five years, depending on industry requirements.

Senate Bill 598 would create a Task Force comprised of legislators, contractors, labor representatives, and agency representatives to evaluate and recommend apprenticeship policies.
