

To whom it may concern:

This bill would place the burden on a citizen to prove they had not committed a crime. This burden would be placed on them by the state and a citizen may find themselves standing in court when someone has stolen from them. This knee jerk reaction to violence is not the answer. The gun is just a tool that is used, hammers or knives are as well. Should these also be required to be locked and registered? What is the line between the two? Consider this carefully.

Regards

Travis Wenks