As you should already know, this bill will only aid in the slaughter of wolves, whose population is already scarce enough.

They fear people and stay out of man's path. Man on the other hand holds no such respect. Rather, man's fear overrides reason and delves into madness. So irrational is man that he goes far out of his path to interfere, to intrude, and to kill. His passion is for violence and he eases his pain by inflicting it upon others.

Before letting such a creature decide the fate of all, ask who truly is the dangerous animal. Man oft goes too far and too freely. Work instead to bring justice for his wrongs that all may benefit.
