

Justice Reinvestment Fact Sheet Baker County

Created by: Oregon Criminal Justice Commission

Created On: February 2015

2013-15 Justice Reinvestment Grant Award: $57,494

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Mitchell Southwick

Presiding Judge: Greg Baxter

District Attorney: Matt Shirtcliff

Community Corrections Director: Will Benson

Sheriff: Mitch Southwick

Baker County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Baker County has been using their JRI funds to increase treatment, mainly cognitive restructuring, both in the community and in their local custody setting. They have expanded what began as their M57 program, and with the reinvestment funds, they have been able to serve all of their offenders. The focus is on their local control and local PPS population as this has been an underserved population within Baker County. The funds have also added to their indigent housing demands. The reinvestments funds have allowed improvements upon the existing transitional housing in Baker County, thereby aiding offenders in their release from prison.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

A large need for Baker County is the need of a mental health hold facility. With the rise of mental health affected individuals, there is a bombardment of mental health cases in their local emergency room. Without a hold facility, it takes law enforcement individuals off the street to sit with the patient and often times, the jail (if there is new criminal activity or parole/probation violations) is used as a mental health hold facility. This is a poor use of the jail and often is the last thing that the patient/individual needs. However, the funding is just not available for such a facility.

Justice Reinvestment Fact Sheet Benton County

Created by: Oregon Criminal Justice Commission
Created On: February 2015

2013-15 Justice Reinvestment Grant Award: $179,019

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Sheriff Scott Jackson

Presiding Judge: Honorable David B. Connell

District Attorney: John Haroldson

Parole and Probation Captain: Justin Carley

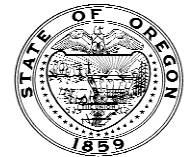

Benton County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Benton County employs evidence-based principles and collaborates with community partners to focus resources and supervision on their highest risk offenders who present the greatest risk to the community. They utilize core principles of EBP to implement and sustain research based supervision and case management practices.

Benton County uses the reinvestment fund to create evidence-based cognitive behavioral programs to work with offender's to prepare them to be treatment-ready prior to being referred to substance abuse treatment. They also fund a transition program that is designed to enhance public safety through effective transitioning of offenders from state and local custody to the community.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If additional JRI funds were available, Benton County would pursue a mental health treatment court, re-entry costs for prison releases to Benton County (food, meds, transportation, MH assessments, subsidized housing, etc.), subsidized housing, evidence-based programming, Mental Health supervision, Mental Health Court, Drug Treatment Court, in-custody treatment (jail), and parenting programs.

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Chris Hoy

Presiding Judge: Hon. Robert D. Herndon

District Attorney: John Foote

Sheriff: Craig Roberts

Clackamas County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Clackamas County has used the Justice Reinvestment funds to provide short-term transitional leave beds, mentors, and parole/probation officers to offenders.

They have used their reinvestment funds to provide part time clerical support for treatment courts and offer day care for treatment court participants. They have also extended the HOPE Court program for 3 months, providing swift and certain sanctioning, supervision, monitored urinalyses and other services.

Potential Future Activities if Fully Funded:

Clackamas County would like to invest in transition services for individuals released from both DOC and the Clackamas County Jail. In addition, they would like to use funds to provide services such as GED, employment support, mental health, etc. for those at risk of returning to custody.

Additional Positions Created:

An additional parole and probation officer position as well as a mentor position at Bridges to Change were created.

Presiding Judge: Hon. Philip L. Nelson
District Attorney: Joshua Marquis
Community Corrections Directors: Kristen Hanthorn
Sheriff: Tom Bergin

Clatsop County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Clatsop County has used the reinvestment funds to increase their staffing level by 1 FTE and reassign one Probation Deputy to Sargent's position. This allowed them to reduce case load size. Additionally, they have been able to subsidize housing for more offenders. Clatsop County has added subsidized treatment slots and addressed transportation issues by providing bus tickets for offenders.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If Clatsop County were to receive additional JRI funds they would like to re-examine how they supervise offenders who have downward departure sentences. They would focus their attention on those offenders at the greatest risk to fail on probation and engage them in evidence-based treatment programs (subsidized). If appropriate, Clatsop County would divert them to Adult Drug Court and their Mental Health Treatment Court.

Sheriff: Jeff Dickerson

Columbia County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Columbia County has used the JRI funds to utilize evidence-based programs to reduce recidivism. They have also provided cognitive restructuring programs, utilized local alcohol and drug provider re-entry programs - Drug Court/Dependency Court, A&D treatment, urinalysis testing, and mental health evaluations. They have used the funds to structure transitional housing and jail sanction, and provided a work release program as an alternative to jail or combination of jail sanctions and work crew.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If additional JRI funds were available, Columbia County would provide crisis intervention for mentally ill offenders who are in contact with the criminal justice system and would provide evaluation and treatment for domestic violence offenders. They would also use additional funds to provide transition services as an alternative to jail, including restorative justice services.

Sheriff: Craig Zanni

Coos County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Coos County has used their Justice Reinvestment Funds to provide intensive supervision from a specialized Parole and Probation Officer. They have also used the JRI funds to provide treatment, housing, equipment for work, and educational supplies for offenders.

Coos County would also like to expand treatment in their local jail and look at the possibility of a drug court model in the future. They would like to expand their targeted supervision program that focuses on the Downward Departure and Optional Probation cases where they have been seeing encouraging results.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If additional Justice Reinvestment Funds were available, Coos County would offer more jail space to provide sanctions for the female offender population.

Crook County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Crook County used the JRI funds to provide a Criminal Thinking Errors program titled Moral Recognition Therapy (MRT) to probation, post-prison, and pre-trial clients while in custody. The programs are continued after clients are released from custody and under supervision.

Crook County also uses the Justice Reinvestment funds to provide mental health medication to clients who are not on Oregon Health Plan, to assist the Drug Court, and to upgrade materials and services for their work crew.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If additional funds were offered, Crook County would invest in clean and sober housing for post-prison offenders. They currently have no housing services for those who are under supervision and homeless.

Sheriff: Larry Blanton

Deschutes County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Deschutes County used the JRI funds for the Deschutes County Community Justice Department Adult Parole and Probation Division's proposal. This proposal has three key components:

1. Parole and probation officer (PPO) assigned to the JRP caseload to intervene with these inmates prior to release.
2. Diversion from prison. Intervene at pre-sentence with offenders convicted but not yet sentenced for a crime eligible for downward departure to probation in lieu of a prison sentence.
3. Intervention with the departure cases serving a sentence in jail prior to release to probation.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

Additional JRI funds would be used to expand capacity of the two programs describe herein and, subject to availability of funds, initiate new programs that may include: a structured formalized pre-trial release program that includes electronic monitoring and community supervision, additional housing resources, MRT program, and possibly a 7 day a week UA program.

Justice Reinvestment Fact Sheet Douglas County

Created by: Oregon Criminal Justice Commission
Created On: February 2015

2013-15 Justice Reinvestment Grant Award: $575,756

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Chris Boice

Presiding Judge: Randolph Lee Garrison

District Attorney: Rick L. Wesenberg

Parole and Probation Supervisor: Joe Garcia

Douglas County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

The JRI funds provide 2 Full-Time Jail Deputies. Due to a significant reduction in O&C federal funding, Douglas County's local public safety agencies have continued to downsize over the past 5 years. Their current level, prior to HB 3194 funding, did not allow for any additional pods to be open within the jail in order to support their high-risk Residential In-Custody Alcohol & Drug Treatment Program (RSAT). HB 3194 funds have allowed Douglas County to adequately staff the jail to allow for the expansion of the RSAT program which directly reduces prison bed usage.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If additional funds were provided, Douglas County would continue to target funds for high risk offenders in order to reduce the use of prison beds, protect public safety, and reduce recidivism. One proposed option is to hire a Release Assistance Officer/RSAT liaison which would be a Douglas County Sheriff position. This position would be housed within their jail and would assist in better managing its population while also serving as a liaison for the RSAT program. Douglas County continues to be one of the fastest growing supervised populations in Oregon and the jail population in Douglas County reflects that increase through its required matrix of offenders currently serving sentences or sanctions in place of offenders waiting for a court appearance. This increase in the non-released jail population has directly impacted their community corrections department's ability to impose short immediate sanctions in an evidence based manner due to overcrowding issues.

Gilliam County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Gilliam County has used the Justice Reinvestment funds to hire one additional clinician to address mental health needs for their younger and older population, freeing up other clinicians to concentrate on accountability and reducing recidivism.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If Gilliam County were to receive additional funds, they would like to assist those who lack the resources needed for treatment beds. The funds would be used to assist those in need of treatment the resources to locate a facility, funding and transportation.

Grant County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Grant County used their Justice Reinvestment funds to hire a part-time community service supervisor/treatment coordinator. This coordinator cultivates and monitors community service work in the community and also provides Moral Reconciliation Therapy for offenders.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

The position that was created can only be utilized two days a week with current funding which is not sufficient time to meet this department's goals. If Grant County were to receive at least the minimum grant amount this position could be potentially full-time and the Moral Reconciliation Therapy program could be expanded to include Drug Court participants and county jail inmates.

Sheriff: Matt English

Hood River County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Hood River has used the JRI funds for Parole and Probation to contract with a dual diagnosis counselor to provide A&D assessments, outpatient services, and cognitive thinking classes. Funding has targeted a gap in A&D services for P&P clientele to not only reduce recidivism but reduce potential DOC sentences and enhance overall public safety.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If Hood River could receive additional funding, the probation division would like to utilize funding to create an intensive supervision/day reporting program that will help stabilize new intakes for the first few weeks of supervision when they are most vulnerable. Public safety personnel are working towards starting a Mental Health Court supported by 3194 funding sources.

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Mark Orndoff
Presiding Judge: Lorenzo A. Mejia
District Attorney: Beth Heckert
Community Corrections Director: Shane Hagey
Sheriff: Corey Falls

Jackson County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

The JRI funding was used to assist in the expansion of the Jackson County jail to incorporate the addition of 60 jail beds and an in-custody alcohol and drug treatment program for both male (26 beds) and females (24 beds). Contracted services with a local non-profit substance abuse treatment agency was incorporated to provide assessment, A&D treatment and assist with case management and transition. Transition Center staff was incorporated to assist with collaborative case management to provide release planning and transitional services to clients releasing from the jail to our Transition Center and/or back into the community.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If Jackson County could receive additional funding, they would develop a release assistance program within the Jackson County Circuit Court. This program was previously eliminated due to budget cuts resulting in an inability to quickly, efficiently, and objectively manage the jail population. In addition, they would like to invest in additional residential drug and alcohol treatment beds as there is a shortage within our county. These beds would further enhance our ability to provide treatment to individuals as they progress through the various phases of the criminal justice system.

Josephine County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Josephine County used the Justice Reinvestment funds to rent three secure treatment beds from Jackson County Jail for high risk, prison bound, and drug addicted offenders including STTL Re-entry Coordination, Research and Analysis, Lillis House transitional housing, Tx Court DA Participation, MH Specialist Hour Increase at Jail

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

Additional JRI funds would be used to provide the following:

- Transitional housing for high risk offenders in the community
 - Housing lease and supplies
 - Transition housing manager
- Establishing a pod for secure local treatment beds in the local jail
 - Program/infrastructure development
 - treatment provider and jail staff resources
- Increased alcohol/drug treatment for higher risk offenders in jail, transitional housing, and field services (treatment provider).
- District Attorney services for prosecuting non-person offenses working collaboratively with parole/probation officers for high risk departure cases.
- Provide police/deputy support to assist in surveillance and accountability

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Community Corrections Director
Kiki Parker-Rose

Presiding Judge: Marci Warner Adkisson

District Attorney: Robert W. Patridge

Sheriff: Frank Skrah

Klamath County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Klamath County combined their HB 3194 Funds, Sheriff's fund, Mental Health fund and Community Corrections dollars to open Pod C at the Klamath County Jail. This is a 44 bed facility (males). This only funds the operations of the facility. Community Corrections, with grant in aid funds, provides cognitive programming, transition planning, alcohol/drug assessments and mental health screenings in Pod C. Their local community mental health provider (CMHP) conducts groups five days week in the Pod.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

Additional funds would allow Klamath County to begin using risk assessments before sentencing. They would like to hire at least one deputy district attorney, two probation officers, a counselor and a full time legal assistant and a full time corrections assistant. They would also like to invest in more housing and treatment resources for both in and out of custody offenders. They would use the funds to hire or contract for an on-site mental health/medication management/prescriber. They would also contract or hire an alcohol and drug treatment provider that could provide intensive outpatient counseling.

Klamath County would like to use additional HB 3194 funds to engage in and EBDM process. This would allow them to map their entire system, identifying key decision points through the process and develop strategies to improve their local system at various levels. Lastly, Klamath County would like to invest in training to ensure they are using fidelity in their programs.

Lake County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Lake County will use their JRI funds to support the Lake County Treatment Court. They will use monies for treatment costs, compliance monitoring (UA's), rewards, books/supplies for treatment and the costs associated with having a 20 hours per month Treatment Court Coordinator.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If Lake County would have received additional JRI funding, they would have incorporated assessment based sentencing, however the need was greater for a more intense treatment court based on their current countywide issues (drug use, drug sales, family related problems due to drug use, and increased accountability and court compliance).

Sheriff: Tom Turner

Lane County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Lane County used their Justice Reinvestment funds to provide mental health and substance abuse treatment services for offenders on supervision by Parole and Probation, supervision, pretrial services, transitional housing, and education services.

Justice Reinvestment has enabled Lane County to restore and enhance their system of services to reduce recidivism and prison usage and develop a plan to measure and monitor the success of that system. Lane County has been able to develop new collaborations and strengthen existing ones for more effective and efficient service delivery. They have also used these funds to help leverage additional resources to increase and enhance their local justice reinvestment system and strategies.

Justice Reinvestment Fact Sheet Lincoln County

Created by: Oregon Criminal Justice Commission
Created On: February 2015

2013-15 Justice Reinvestment Grant Award: $210,676

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: District Attorney Michelle Branam

Presiding Judge: Thomas O. Brandford

Sherriff: David M. Carpenter

Parole and Probation Captain: Suzanne Gonzales

Lincoln County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Lincoln County has used the JRI funds to provide a Specialized Parole Probation Officer to coordinate and monitor the community based programs and structured transitional leave programs. They have also funded evidence-based programs designed to reduce recidivism that include a balanced administration of sanctions, supervision and treatment.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If Lincoln County were to receive additional JRI funds, they would invest in housing and treatment resources. There is a critical shortage of beds available to the offenders currently being supervised which causes long wait lists. Additional funds would be used to provide housing and treatment for offenders so that they would no longer be on the streets or in the jails.

Justice Reinvestment Fact Sheet

Linn County

Created by: Oregon Criminal Justice Commission
Created On: February 2015

2013-15 Justice Reinvestment Grant Award: $606,218

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Judge Daniel Murphy

District Attorney: Doug Marteeny

Sheriff: Bruce Riley

Community Corrections Director: Maureen Robb

Linn County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Linn County Justice Reinvestment Funds were used to expand jail capacity, provide additional drug and alcohol treatment, and provide additional mental health treatment. Linn County has used the JRI funds to create a coordination team comprised of Jail Mental Health staff, Alcohol and Drug Program staff, and Community Corrections staff to facilitate proactive screening, assessment, treatment, and provision of ancillary supports to inmates released back to the community on post-prison supervision.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

Additional funding would enable Linn County to more effectively meet the needs of persons in jail with mental illness. Additional JRI funds would also allow Linn County to focus on directing all funds possible toward efforts that will produce a measureable decrease in post release recidivism over the 18 month life of the grant.

Justice Reinvestment Fact Sheet Marion County

Created by: Oregon Criminal Justice Commission

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Commissioner Janet Carlson
Presiding Judge: Paul Lipscomb
District Attorney: Walt Beglau
Sheriff: Jason Myers
Community Corrections Director: Jeff Wood

Marion County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Marion County JRI funds were utilized for community-based sanctions, services, and programs associated with the following two programs: 1) the Marion County Senate Bill (SB) 416 Pilot, which diverts prison-bound offenders to supervision and 2) the Marion County Reentry Initiative (MCR), which targets offenders transitioning to the community from prison.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

As the overall SB 416 Pilot population continues to grow, the available system resources will need to increase proportionately. Also, Marion County is currently receiving a two-year Bureau of Justice Assistance, Second Chance Act Grant for people returning from incarceration who have both an addiction issue and mental health diagnosis (co-occurring). They have committed to serving 60 people a year within this target population. To date, 74 participants have been served, with another month remaining in the first year. Grant funds will be expended within one year. As a community, Marion County would greatly benefit from additional Justice Reinvestment Funding to continue to serve this population.

Justice Reinvestment Fact Sheet Multnomah County

Created by: Oregon Criminal Justice Commission

Created On: February 2015

2013-15 Justice Reinvestment Grant Award: $3,165,399

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Co-Chairs Judy Shiprack and Portland Mayor Charlie Hales

Presiding Judge: Hon. Nan G. Waller

District Attorney: Rod Underhill

Sheriff: Daniel Staton

Director of Community Justice: Scott Taylor

Multnomah County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Multnomah County has used their Justice Reinvestment funds to enhance the Reentry Enhancement Coordination program (REC) and create the Multnomah County Justice Reinvestment Program (MCJRP). MCJRP implemented the use of a risk/needs assessment for presumptive prison defendants. The assessment is used during the legal settlement process to inform sentencing decisions. Depending on the offender's needs and risks, a customized and detailed supervision and treatment plan is developed based on the assessment outcome. Many defendants then receive enhanced, intensive individualized supervision which may include: housing, residential/outpatient alcohol/drug treatment, mental health services, mentoring, parenting, employment and education services.

These evidence-based strategies help Multnomah County make informed sentencing decisions and identify appropriate and responsive community supervision and services. Multnomah County is holding offenders accountable through community supervision and funding programs aimed at the root causes of crime, rather than funding expensive prisons.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If Multnomah County were to receive additional JRI funds, they would expand treatment readiness housing options for the target population (presumptive prison defendants now supervised in the community).

Additional Positions Created:

10 additional public safety positions created.

Community Corrections Director: Marty Silbernagel

Polk County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Polk County has used their JRI funds for the following activities:

1. Housing for male / females offenders.
2. Referral and placement of offenders into Drug Court.
3. 24 hour Thinking for Change class (cognitive skills) provided to supervised offenders.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If Polk County were to receive additional funds, they would like to provide reliable transportation for offenders to get to required meetings, treatment appointments, etc. Additionally, transitional housing options would be broadened due to the shortage and wait lists for offenders to get into recommended treatment program beds.

Justice Reinvestment Fact Sheet Tillamook County

Created by: Oregon Criminal Justice Commission
Created On: February 2015

2013-15 Justice Reinvestment Grant Award: $92,814

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: William Long

Presiding Judge: Hon. Mari G. Trevino and Hon. Jonathon A. Hill

District Attorney: William Porter

Sheriff: Andy Long

Community Corrections Director: Holly Rico

Tillamook County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Tillamook County has used the JRI funds to acquire a part-time probation officer to offset caseload amounts and give direct supervision to more offenders. They have also been able to extend housing opportunities for offenders leaving prison without their own residence.

They have started a GED program to offer educational classes to offenders. They have also started two incentive programs. One program is a fishing/pro social activity where offenders must be clean at least 90 days, without sanctions to participate in a fishing/BBQ event. The second program (D.I.P- Debt Incentive Program) encourages offenders to remain up-to-date on fees and fines by entering them into a drawing for a $5 meal card.

Lastly Tillamook County has provided alternative sanctions to offenders. They provide work crew opportunities or more frequent check-ins in lieu of incarceration.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

Tillamook County would like to procure an instructor to provide a local group treatment setting, with Evidence Based Practices, weekly to provide instruction to offenders and reduce recidivism.

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Susan McHenry
Presiding Judge: Hon. Ronald J. Pahl
District Attorney: Daniel Primus
Sheriff: Terry Rowan
Community Justice Director: Mark Royal

Umatilla County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Umatilla County has used their JRI funds to implement a day management program at Umatilla County Community Justice. This program provides for an intensive supervision model that combines structure, skill building, treatment/engagement, and abscond reduction strategies that targets very high risk/need to reoffend population. The program is held in both Pendleton and Hermiston on a daily basis during the work week. During sessions, offenders are engaged in skill building concepts that include Effective Practices in Community Supervision (EPICS). Transportation is provided as well as a variety of subsidies for medication, housing, etc.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

Umatilla would use additional JRI funds to provide an evidence based treatment model for non-drug court participants that focuses on high and medium risk/needs. This model would serve the post-prison supervision, local control, and other participants determined not to be appropriate and for whom for drug court might not be the best fit. These services were established in the past, but lost due to budget reduction.

Umatilla County would use additional funds for the following: Day management, jail treatment, Sex Offender treatment, and Female Transitional Housing. All of these would aid Umatilla County in reducing recidivism, decreasing prison bed use, protecting the public, and holding offenders accountable.

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Susan R. Roberts
Presiding Judge: Russell West
District Attorney: Mona K. Williams
Sheriff: Steve Rogers
Parole and Probation Director: Kyle Hacker

Wallowa County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Wallowa County has used their JRI funds to provide evidence based cognitive treatment to offenders. We have also used the funds for alternative sanctions such as work crew, GPS, mental health assistance, transitional housing assistance, jail and day reporting. One job was created.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If Wallowa County receives additional JRI funds, we would add an additional officer for increased supervision and a vehicle to be utilized by the County Parole and Probation Department. We will also invest in evidence based treatment such as; alcohol and drug treatment classes, domestic violence classes and increased supervision of domestic violence offenders. We will seek evidence based treatment for offenders while incarcerated and increase availability of transitional housing as funding allows.

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Lindsay Coppinger
Presiding Judge: Hon. Charlie Bailey
District Attorney: Bob Hermann
Community Corrections Director: Steve Berger
Sheriff: Patrick Garrett

Washington County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

The JRI funds have helped the Washington County Jail contract with a firm to help designated inmates with navigating employment opportunities, finding appropriate services, housing for those who cannot afford, and signing up for Cover Oregon. They have also established IGA's with Social Security and DMV to help get ID's for those being released. Community Corrections is leading the process for the County by establishing many of the programs used in the Jail, including contracts with recovery mentors, employment specialists, and clean and sober housing. They have expanded drug testing, mental health assessments and medications. Community Corrections also hired an additional three Probation and Parole Officers for this program.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If additional funds were available, Community Corrections would have hired two additional Probation and Parole Officers to reduce the case load impact for these clients. The Jail would add a mental health Peer and increase contracted staff to help more inmates get signed up for Cover Oregon.

Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Molly Rogers
Presiding Judge: Hon. John A. Olson
District Attorney: Eric J. Nisley
Community Corrections Director: Robert Martin
Sheriff: Rick Eiesland

Wasco County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Wasco County has used the HB3194 funds for in-custody MRT programming at NORCOR and an Employment Program in partnership with MCCOG. Some of the funds were also set aside for transitional housing.

Wasco County Board of Commissioners approved using HB 3194 funds to purchase beds at the regional NORCOR jail dedicated to sanctions for community corrections clients.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If Wasco County would have received additional JRI funding they would have expanded the number of people accessing drug/mental court through enhanced case management services for the Court and coordination of the treatment team. The current level of funding was not sufficient to completely cover the costs and risk of funding for the Community Work Service Coordinator.

Parole and Probation Manager: John Folliard

Wheeler County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Wheeler County has used JRI funds to hire a half-time community service supervisor to allow for more community service instead of incarceration. This allows for more jail beds, therefore creating more jail space for more serious offenders.

Since the program has been incepted there have been 882.8 community service hours assigned in lieu of custody units, allowing Wheeler County to divert over 37 days of jail beds at a cost savings of just under 10 percent of the jail budget.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

If Wheeler County were to receive additional JRI funds, they would invest in hiring additional law enforcement officers.

Justice Reinvestment Fact Sheet Yamhill County

Created by: Oregon Criminal Justice Commission
Created On: February 2015

2013-15 Justice Reinvestment Grant Award: $344,609
Local Public Safety Coordinating Council (LPSCC) Chair: Lee Vasquez
Presiding Judge: Hon. John L. Collins
District Attorney: Bradley C. Berry
Community Corrections Director: Ted Smietana
Sheriff: Tim Svenson

Yamhill County's Use of the Reinvestment Funds:

Yamhill County has used their JRI monies to fund one Corrections Manager to perform pre-sentence assessments on non-violent, prison bound offenders. The Early Defendant Analysis involves completing a report that includes a dynamic criminogenic risk assessment, motivation assessment, substance abuse screen and mental health screen. The manager is also responsible to collect all relevant data on the program, and to produce statistical reports. One year after program implementation 70 referrals have been processed with 15 resulting in dispositional departures to probation. The program has saved 485 prison months, compared to 31 prison months saved with the short-term transitional leave program.

Yamhill County has also funded one Pretrial Services Officer. They have utilized a pretrial risk assessment instrument, and have created a new pretrial release guideline in an effort to control their jail population, to release the defendants who can be safely released, and hold the defendants who cannot be safely released prior to disposition.

Potential Future Activities if More Funds Are Provided:

Yamhill County needs an additional PO assessment officer to expand the capacity of their pre-sentence assessment work. They need an additional Pretrial Services Officer to meet workload demands, and improve their pretrial supervision program. They also need funds to support transitional housing for their STTL population.
