

The objective of this bill appears to me to have nothing to do with lowering crime, as it is hard to imagine any criminal even slightly inconvenienced if this bill becomes law.

The objective then must be to punish us folks who think differently from the present Democratic majority.

Despite statistics that show more guns correlating with less crime, the anti-gun crowd pushes for more restrictive laws, even though they know that the only ones being restricted are the law-abiding folks.

Big Bloomberg money funded a batch of despicable attack ads to give the Democrats this present majority. That is a far cry from making this silly bill a proper course of action. It would be a good thing if a few of the Democrats would re-think this attack on good folks who view the world a little differently (more realistically) than they do.
