

I would like to express my objection to SB941. This is a feel-good bill that in no way adds value to the current background check system. There are more effective ways of keeping guns out of the hands of criminals. For example, the funding and enforcing of current laws would do more than any new law introduced. Adding more unenforceable laws will have no effect on increasing Oregonians' and Americans' safety. We can always increase the promises of security if we give up more freedoms. This argument will always stand true. The line is how much freedom are you willing to surrender for the feeling of security. The truth is that nobody can guarantee your security or mine and I am unwilling to give up any more of my freedoms for promises. I am against SB941 and any other gun-control bills.

Thank you,

-Noah Lyons