BACKGROUND: Canola is an oilseed crop from plants in the mustard family (Brassicaceae). Common types of brassica used for food include cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, Brussel sprouts and radish. The term canola is widely used to refer to rapeseed; canola is a variety of rapeseed bred for human and livestock consumption as well as biodiesel production.

In 2013, the Legislative Assembly passed House Bill 2427 directing the College of Agricultural Sciences at Oregon State University to conduct a peer-reviewed study on canola and report results to an interim committee of the Legislative Assembly by November 1, 2016. The measure also prohibited the growing of canola in the Willamette Valley until 2018 except to extent necessary to conduct the study if the legislature provided funding for the study.

House Bill 3382 amends that law, extending the sunset prohibiting the growing of canola in most of the Willamette
