

Mary Botkin & Associates

Phone: (971) 533-0816 • marybotkinassociates@gmail.com

We want to thank you and the Committee for your hard work on HB 4014 and SB 1511. Your hard work and diligence is more than apparent in the quality of these bills.

As you may recall, our clients produce topical products infused with nonpsychoactive cannabinoids. These products test at containing less than 5% nonpsychoactive cannabinoids.

The dash 2 amendments will exempt these products from OLCC regulations. This will bring these products in line with other products exempted by OLCC by treating them as is currently done with products like vanilla or rum extract, that are alcohol based but not regulated or “controlled” by the OLCC.

This amendment will allow our clients to market their products in a wider market and eliminate the current requirements that they only be sold through a regulated OLCC or OHA store or dispensary.

The creams, salves, and tinctures offer needed pain relief for those suffering with psoriasis, arthritis or other joint pain and skin disorders. They are for use on the skin or hair and not for consumption or internal ingestion.

This is a critical change for our client and will allow them to increase their ability to access a small specialized market of individuals seeking alternative natural and safe products that provide relief without any psychoactive effects.

Mary Botkin

February 2, 2016

Hemp Source

Colorado Springs, CO

What is CBD? CBD is a non-psychoactive constituent of the cannabis plant and its near cousin, the hemp plant. In recent years, CBD has been recognized in medical science as an effective pain killer for cancer patients, as well as a help for anxiety, seizures and chronic pain. Unlike THC, CBD does not get you “high”, and is therefore very appealing for people who would take advantage of the medicinal benefits of the cannabis plant but wish to avoid the

What is CBD? CBD itself is a perfectly legal substance in the United States, as long as it is derived from the hemp plant. These are the kinds of CBD products we provide on this site. We provide only the finest lab-tested CBD Hemp Oil products. We also provide various informational articles and links to research to help you decide if CBD is right for you or your family.

What is CBD? CBD is a perfectly safe cannabinoid with no significant mental or physical side-effects, according to scientific research. CBD is the primary substance contained in the famous Charlotte’s Web strain. Browse our site...see what CBD can do for you!

<http://cbdhempsource.net/>