Phil Wright

East Oregonian

“The student was tall, dressed all in black, strode into the main hallway at the Boardman high school and fired two rounds from a handgun.

No one was hit. Riverside Junior-Senior High School already was in lockdown. Minutes before the shooter entered Friday morning, an agitated father had taken the front office staff hostage.

Dozens of observers in the school’s auditorium watched all the drama unfold on TV and projection screens during the largest school shooter drill ever in Eastern Oregon.

Boardman Police Chief Rick Stokoe and Pendleton Police Chief Stuart Roberts organized the law enforcement end, while the Morrow County School District coordinated the education side. Staff from 18 school districts were on hand, along with representatives from eight law enforcement agencies, including the sheriff’s offices of Union and Morrow counties, and Boardman fire and ambulance services. Morrow County school students, staff and teachers volunteered to play various roles. Almost 400 people in all watched or participated, including 45 students and 260 members of the school district.”
