EFFECT OF AMENDMENT:

BACKGROUND:

Current law defines fixed load vehicles as those vehicles that support or move a permanent load in the form of equipment constructed as part of or permanently attached to the body of the vehicle. Historically, a truck-mounted transit mixer (cement truck) has been exempt from the definition of fixed load vehicle. Other exemptions include travel trailers, self-propelled mobile cranes, and tow vehicles. Volumetric mixers are a relatively new configuration that serves the same, or similar, function as a cement truck.
