BACKGROUND:

Mental health issues are growing concerns on college campuses that can impact student recruitment, retention, and program completion. The American Psychological Association reports that in recent years, there have been sharp increases in the number of severe psychological problems being addressed at college counseling centers around the country. Mental health issues contribute to many students doing poorly or not successfully completing college programs.

Senate Bill 231 establishes the Task Force on Student Mental Health Support and requires that the task force investigate how mental health issues impact college students, including in areas of student recruitment, retention, and program completion. The measure requires the Higher Education Coordinating Commission to provide staff support for the task force, and requires the task force to submit a report of its findings and recommendations to an interim committee of the Legislative Assembly that relates to higher education by July 1, 2018.
