Julie,

I am a friend of the Wu family whose son Nicholas is being served by the Junction City Hospital. I have visited the hospital with the family and see how vital an institution it is for their family as well as the other families served there. The treatment and structure of the hospital has been very positive in seeing Nicholas through his rehabilitation. I would urge the legislature to continue funding the Junction City hospital as a source of healing in the community for those struggling with mental health.
