

I am an organic food manufacturer here in Oregon and am concerned that not enough is being done to support farmers who suffer from contamination. If bad water run off poisoned animals, or a fire were to spread from one farm to another, the damages would be assigned to the farm where it came from. Its important for genetic pollution to be seen the same way. Its time for Oregon to decide it wants to be part of the solution to our agricultural inequities or part of the problem. Fair is fair. Thanks
