

Dear Ms Freeman,

For farmer, nonfarmer like myself, and any elected official that puts the state and its people first in line for protections, this SHOULD be a no-brainer. We all know that if our dog gets into a neighbor's pasture and chases their livestock that the dog will be rightfully shot. The uncontrolled spread of genetically engineered plants is a much bigger broader threat. If we cannot eliminate gmo crops completely within our borders, we should at least be able to make those who use those crops pay for damages.

Please pass my comments along to whomsoever will be responsible for passing this legislation.

Thank you
