BACKGROUND:

The Driver and Motor Vehicle Services Division (DMV) of the Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT) is the state entity responsible for issuing licenses and permits that authorize the holder to lawfully operate motor vehicles on the state's public roads and highways. The agency issues approximately 177,000 new driver licenses annually, in addition to issuing renewals for about 335,000 licenses each year.

The federal Real ID Act of 2005 prescribed minimum standards for state-issued driver licenses and identification cards in order for those documents to be acceptable identification for federal purposes, such as boarding airplanes and entering federal buildings. The law is administered by the federal Department of Homeland Security. The Legislative Assembly began the process of compliance with the Real ID Act with passage of Senate Bill 1080 (2008), which required persons applying for driver licenses or ID cards to provide proof of citizenship or legal presence. However, subsequent enacted legislation (Senate Bill 536, 2009) prohibits DMV from further implementation of the Real ID Act unless federal funds are provided to cover the cost of implementation. Oregon is one of several states currently operating under federal extension.
