Dear Senator,

This email is to let you know that I support SB 687. I want to make sure that the definition of "abuse" does not over-reach to include parents who exercise their right to make medical decisions for their children, either pro or against vaccinations, options to elect certain immunizations and not others, or to delay vaccinations. As a mother I vaccinated all of my children fully. But it is a critical over-reach for any government to usurp the right of a parent to choose medical decisions that pertain to their child, especially when it has to do with injecting them with chemicals. It would be outrageous for any governmental body to mandate any such thing. The current vaccination schedule as it stands is quite different from the way it was when my children were young. It is a crime to treat kids like they are human pin cushions. The dangers of the adjuvants and chemicals in vaccines is a well accepted fact. Many of them are "neurotoxic". It was only a few years ago that mercury, one of the most toxic substances known was removed from pediatric vaccines. If vaccines are safe, then why does the vaccine injury compensation fund exist?

The "right to choose" is the right way to go in this decision. There are many who seek to take away this right. I just want this new legislation to preserve and protect this right, and not give room to any who would abuse the situation.

Thank you,
Lisa Scott
