

I strongly support designating the rescued shelter dog as Oregon's official state dog. It reflects Oregon's compassion for others (including animals), is a positive statement about "underdogs" (pun intended), and respects the "average Joe" (no fancy over-bred dogs needed here). It's an Oregon thing to do.

Thanks,
Karen Gilmore

Sent from my iPad