

Rent control hurts the very people it's intended to help. Capping profits discourages investments in multi-family units. Existing units will be converted to condos and developments in the pipeline will be changed to owner-occupied units as well.

This is a bad policy at the worst possible time. Our housing supply is already years behind.

Kris Davenport