

Why is it necessary to shuffle the burden of the housing crisis onto property owners (landlords, tax payers) when the city of Portland is responsible in part for creating and or not dealing with homelessness directly??? Since I was 5yrs. old that's over 60 yrs. I remember Hobos, Bums, Transients, Homeless etc. called by many names. Some want help and housing some just want handouts. Strapping the hands of landlords is not the answer to an age old problem. Our costs are already high with property taxes, utility's, business licenses, SDCs if a property is developable and city ordinances. Portland is experiencing growing pains and wounding landlords and tax payers in the process.

Thanks

Dave
