BACKGROUND:

For various occupations, practitioners are required to obtain a license or similar credentials from a state licensing board or agency. The required criteria for obtaining licensure, certification and other professional and occupational credentials are specific to each occupation, but may include practical training, completion of a specified level of education and passing a relevant exam.

Senate Bill 1028 permits professional licensing boards to consider, and accept, an applicant's relevant experience in the place of a high school diploma or equivalent in order to fulfill licensure, certification or other occupational and professional service authorization requirements.
