Please take a moment to learn from past mistakes and successes in the energy sector. Although Germany is not in an ideal location they are able to provide the majority of their power from renewables. The recent tunnel collapse in Washington proves what a hassle storing radioactive waste can be. Fukushima has taught us that nuclear power near major fault lines can be a catastrophic mistake. China is investing heavily into renewable sources. Look into the long term investments of renewables and how they will pave the way for our State and our children.
