Senate Rules Committee
OR

Dear Committee,

As a young person growing up I watched the conventions and the electoral college results. Seemed like smooth and fair way to elect our president. Now that I reached the over 55 group I am not so comfortable with this method. If I am the person whose vote did not count because it was on the "over" side of the popular vote, I could say that my vote did have a count in electing a president. Not really a consideration in a democracy. Now days counting votes is so quick and reliable that popular vote should be the acceptable way to select a president.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Ellen S
