

Rules Committee,

Greetings. I cannot quite understand the reason or logic of the electoral vote. I was taught in school that we , the PEOPLE of the United States of America at certain times, in certain years, will "vote" for a fellow American to hold a public position with many other fellow Americans, who take an oath of loyalty to serve at their fullest capabilities to uphold The Constitution of the country. Now, as I was taught, to make this "vote" thing fair, a rule was implemented which was quite simple. If an individual is a legitimate registered voter then you are allowed one vote to cast for the person of your choice. So does everybody else. At the end of the day the votes were tallied. The individual with the most "votes", was the winner. End of discussion. And that's how things were. Well, I must have missed school the day electoral bullshit began, because it makes no sense.. WHOM even has the most amount of votes wins. And that's how it is. I find it appalling that the majority of the elected individuals currently in office, are allowed to do what they are doing. These people are traitors. It's ONE

VOTE, ONE PERSON. Period. Keep it this way. Not some chosen, or assigned amount of electoral votes. Thank you
