

Rules Committee,

The antiquated electoral college has resulted in multiple, disastrous national administrations lacking majority support and popular legitimacy , most recently manifesting in the election of Mr. Trump, a person manifestly unfit for office. The greatest danger stemming from such illegitimate, non-majoritarian leaders is their ability to gerrymander elections, suppress voter participation and turnout, and permanently distort electoral maps in their own favor, and stacking federal courts with reactionaries favoring an agenda that continues to privilege a tiny minority of socioeconomic elites.
