Permits ODVA to cooperate with the Higher Education Coordinating Commission and to solicit and receive funds from alternative sources. Declares emergency, effective July 1, 2017.

BACKGROUND:

Transitioning from military to civilian life can sometimes present unique challenges for veterans. Supporting veterans' educational and employment goals are two ways the transition can be made easier. Both federal and state educational benefits for veterans encourage enrollment in public universities and community colleges, but veterans are generally atypical students in many ways: often older than their peers, often with families, and obviously, with a certain perspective that only comes from having served in the armed forces. On-campus resource centers are tailored to help veterans succeed, help veterans connect to other veterans, and help ground them within the broader collegiate environment.

Senate Bill 143 appropriates General Fund dollars to the Department of Veterans Affairs, to support existing veterans resource centers and coordinators on college campuses, and to establish new ones.
