EFFECT OF AMENDMENT:

No amendment.

BACKGROUND:

Current Law

Under current law, property tax refunds are generally refunded to the owner of the taxable property or any person who holds an interest in the property that obligates the person to pay imposed property taxes. At the request of the owner, and with approval of the tax collector, the county governing body may authorize refunds payable under specified circumstances to be credited against the total tax liability of the account.

Specified circumstances include: Court decision, Department of Revenue ordered change or correction, value correction, and when taxes are collected against property not within jurisdiction of the tax levying body.

Changes to Existing Law

Measure requires specified property tax refunds to be credited to total tax liability of account. If refund credit is greater than total tax liability of account, remaining refund balance is then refunded directly to owner of taxable property. Total tax liability of account means the total amount of tax that has been extended or charged against a particular property tax account.

Measure allows refunds, at request of owner and with approval of tax collector, to be credited to the tax liability of a property tax account of the refund requester if:

- Refund results from payment made by mistake to another property, or
- Overpayment due to proration of taxes resulting from property being destroyed or damaged.
