BACKGROUND:

The Rockwood neighborhood in Gresham has a large racially, ethnically, and linguistically diverse population of nearly 42,000 residents, a poverty rate of 40 percent, and a median household income below $39,000.

Senate Bill 139 appropriates $2,000,000 from the General Fund to construct and equip an innovation and workforce training center in the Rockwood neighborhood. The center would offer services through public and private partnerships, operated by partners co-located at the facility to provide job training, small business development, a digital media lab, incubator office space, and a manufacturing maker space. Anticipated partners include Mount Hood Community College, Mount Hood Community College Small Business Development Center, MetroEast Community Media, WorkSource Oregon, Rockwood Makerspace, and Worksystems, Inc.

Other workforce centers in Oregon follow a similar model of providing a facility and collaborating with public and private partners to provide services. For example, in 2016, the Legislative Assembly appropriated funds for the Oregon Manufacturing Innovation Center (OMIC), a new research, development and training center in Columbia County that brings together educational partners across the state to provide hands-on workforce training to college students in aerospace and associated careers.

Senate Bill 139 has a subsequent referral to the Joint Committee on Ways and Means for consideration of lottery bonds to fill the remaining gap in funding for construction and capital equipment of the proposed center.
