BACKGROUND:

The Oregon Health Licensing Office (HLO) is the central licensing and regulatory office that oversees 14 health-related boards, councils and programs in Oregon. HLO reviews and approves applicant qualifications, conducts examinations, inspects licensed facilities and independent contractors, responds to and investigates consumer complaints and disciplines licensees who are found in violation of state requirements. Any question regarding confidentiality of investigatory information requires an analysis of both HLO governing statutes and the statutes that individually govern the various professional boards.

House Bill 2301-A makes several changes to programs operated by OHA's Division of Public Health, Health Licensing Office and modifies a number of public advisory bodies overseen by OHA.
