BACKGROUND:

In 2015, the Legislative Assembly passed HB 3100 which established foundational public health capabilities and programs to detect and prevent infectious diseases, protect the public from exposure to environmental hazards and respond to natural and man-made disasters in Oregon's communities.

The public health system modernizing efforts have three priorities: expanding outreach through collective action with health care and other partners; addressing health priorities using the foundational capabilities; and demonstrating the impact of public health through accurate metrics and evaluation.
