1 COME NOW, Plaintiffs and file this Opposition to Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss the 2 Amended Complaint.

3 I. INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

4 As a general rule, the law of the state in which property is located will determine 5 whether a “mortgage” or a “deed of trust” is used to pledge real property as security. In lien 6 theory states such as Oregon, a “deed of trust” creates a lien on the property.¹ Further, while 7 the deed of trust and note are ordinarily separate documents,

8 [t]he note and mortgage are inseparable; the former as 9 essential, the latter is an incident. An assignment of the note 10 carries the mortgage with it, while an assignment of the latter 11 alone is a nullity.²

12 Through their actions, however, Defendants have collapsed this long-standing Oregon 13 rule,³ rendering the public record of interests in real estate opaque and unreliable. This result 14 is impermissible in Oregon. The filing of false and inaccurate documents undermines the 15 reliability of the public records system on which so many rely, including land owners, 16 purchasers, local governments, title companies, insurers, and relators.

17 The instant action, filed by Plaintiffs, the Counties of Clackamas, Coos, Crook, 18 Jackson, Klamath, Lane, Linn, Marion, Washington, and Yamhill (“Counties”), is intended to 19 halt the filing of fraudulent documents by the MERS Defendants which have damaged the 20 Counties and their respective record keeping systems.

21 In the most common residential lending scenario, there are two parties to a real property 22 mortgage: a lender (the mortgagee) and a borrower (the mortgagor). When a mortgage lender

23 ¹ James v. ReconTrust Co., 845 F. Supp. 2d 1145, 1152 (D. Or. 2012).

² Carpenter v. Longan, 83 U.S. 271, 274, 21 L. Ed. 313 (1872).

³ U.S. Nat. Bank of Portland v. Holton, 99 Or. 419, 427-29 (1921).

1 loans money to a home buyer, it obtains two documents: (1) a promissory note in the form of 2 a negotiable instrument from the borrower and (2) a mortgage or trust deed granting the 3 mortgage lender a security interest in the property as collateral to repay the note. The mortgage 4 or trust deed, as distinguished from the note, establishes the lien on the property securing 5 repayment of the loan. In Oregon, the note cannot be separated from the mortgage or trust 6 deed. (Amended Complaint [“AC”] ¶ 44.)⁴

7 Recording an interest in real property in Oregon is permissive, not mandatory.⁵
8 However, if a party wants or needs to have a “first lien” security interest (a “perfected” 9 interest), that party must record “as provided by law.” By statute,

10 Every conveyance, deed, land sale contract, assignment of all or any 11 portion of a seller’s or purchaser’s interest in a land sale contract or 12 other agreement or memorandum thereof affecting the title of real 13 property within this state which is not recorded as provided by law 14 is void as against any subsequent purchaser in good faith and for a 15 valuable consideration of the same real property, or any portion thereof, whose conveyance, deed, land sale contract, assignment of all or any portion of a seller’s or purchaser’s interest in a land sale contract or other agreement or memorandum thereof is first filed for record, and as against the heirs and assigns of such subsequent purchaser.

16 ORS 93.640 (emphasis added). In exchange for meeting the statutory recording requirements 17 provided by Oregon law, lienholders are granted priority over subsequent purchasers or 18 lienholders.

19 The relevant statute makes it clear that recording in the County Clerk’s office is the one 20 and only method for obtaining a perfected interest:

21 To give constructive notice of an interest in real property, a 22 person must have documentation of the interest recorded in the indices maintained under ORS 205. 130 in the county

23 ⁴ Plaintiffs adopt and incorporate their Amended Complaint as though fully set forth herein.

24 ⁵ See Brandrup v. ReconTrust Co., N.A., 353 Or. 668, 698-99 (2013).

1 where the property is located. Such recordation, and no 2 other record, constitutes constructive notice to any person of the existence of the interest.

3 ORS 93.643(1) (emphasis added).

4 A party that is entitled to the legal benefits and protections of ORS 93.640 (perfected 5 lienholders status) cannot obtain these benefits and protections unless and until that party 6 properly records the security instrument with the proper County and pays the County the 7 required filing fee. Once a deed of trust is recorded and the security instrument is “perfected”, 8 Oregon law requires that the deed of trust be re-filed with the proper County Clerk’s office 9 each time the mortgage is transferred in the event the new lienholder wants or needs to have 10 “first lien” perfected status. A perfected security interest cannot be assigned or transferred by 11 operation of law and remain perfected as to the transferee. This ensures that the County deed 12 records remain current and correctly identify any party asserting a lien. (AC ¶¶ 45, 46)

13 ORS 93.610 requires that:

14 Separate books shall be provided by the county clerk in each county 15 for the recording of deeds and mortgages. In one book all deeds left 16 with the clerk shall be recorded at full length, or as provided in ORS 93.780 to 93.800, with the certificates of acknowledgment or proof of their execution, and in the other all mortgages left with the county clerk shall in like manner be recorded.

17 (AC ¶¶ 41, 42).

18 However, this traditional process for recording security interests changed in the late 19 1990s as the buying and selling of mortgage loans increased in the private sector. As the 20 issuance of mortgage-backed securities grew, the traditional process for recording security 21 interests was deemed by the mortgage industry to be too inconvenient and cumbersome.⁶ (AC 22

24 ⁶ See Cervantes v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., 656 F.3d 1034, 1039 (9th Cir. 2011).

1 ¶¶ 113-14). The industry’s response was to create the MERS System. (AC ¶115).⁷ MERS is 2 a subsidiary of MERSCORP, Inc. (“MERSCORP”). MERSCORP is owned by, and its 3 members are, various mortgage banks, title companies, and title insurance companies, 4 including Shareholder Defendants. (AC ¶¶ 31-34).⁸ MERS was developed by the real estate 5 industry to operate an electronic registration system for tracking interests in mortgage loans 6 and to serve as the mortgagee of record for its members in deed records throughout the United 7 States. MERS’ members pay a fee to use the MERS System for tracking mortgages and to have 8 MERS appear as the mortgagee of record.⁹ MERS and its members, including all Defendants, 9 agree amongst themselves that: 1) sales or transfers of mortgage loans amongst MERS 10 members will not thereafter be recorded in the real property records; 2) MERS will remain as 11 the “grantee” of the security interest created by the original deed of trust; and 3) subsequent 12 sales or transfers amongst MERS members will be tracked electronically in the MERS System.
13 AC ¶ 92; see also Exhibit 3, MERSCORP Membership Rules.¹⁰ “Any loan registered on the 14 MERS® System is inoculated against future assignments because MERS remains the 15 mortgagee no matter how many times servicing is traded.”¹¹

16 Rule II.4 of the MERSCORP, Inc. Rules of Membership provides, in part, that “each 17 Member, at its own expense, shall cause ‘Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc.’ to 18 appear in the applicable public land records as the Mortgagee of Record as Nominee for the 19 Note Owner and its successors and/or assigns with respect to each mortgage loan that the 20 _____

21 ⁷ Exhibit 1, MERS published document entitled “Quick Facts” describing the history of MERS.

⁸ See id.

⁹ Exhibit 2, Process Loans, Not Paperwork.

22 ¹⁰ How Defendants achieved these requirements in light of Oregon’s Statute of Frauds is unclear. See ORS 41.580.

23 ¹¹ According to MERS, “[a]ny loan registered on the MERS® System is inoculated against future assignments because MERS remains the mortgagee no matter how many times servicing is traded.” Exhibit 4, “MERS - About Us”, available at <http://www.mersinc.org/about/index.aspx>.

1 Member registers on the MERS® System.”¹² Accordingly, at the origination of an Oregon 2 mortgage loan by a MERS member, the lender directs preparation of a deed of trust identifying 3 the lender as “the lender” and MERS as “the beneficiary.” (AC ¶ 88).

4 When a deed of trust in which MERS is denominated as “the beneficiary” is recorded, 5 the county clerks index MERS as a “grantee” in the statutory deed records. By way of example, 6 Exhibit 1 to Defendant’s Motion to Dismiss shows that MERS is not simply identified as the 7 lender’s nominee or agent. Instead, MERS is also identified without qualification as “the 8 beneficiary under this Security Instrument.”¹³ Because MERS was denominated as “the 9 beneficiary,” both Guild Mortgage Company (as “lender”) and MERS (as “beneficiary”) 10 would be indexed as a “grantee” in the Statutory Grantor/Grantee Index. The reason why the 11 lenders denominate MERS as “the beneficiary,” and not just as the lenders’ nominee, is 12 because the County would not index MERS as a “grantee” if it were merely serving in the 13 capacity as the nominee or agent of the lender, its successors and assigns. (AC ¶ 139). It is only 14 by denominating MERS itself as “the beneficiary” that MERS will be indexed as a grantee and 15 therefore as one in whose favor a security interest has been granted. An agreement with the 16 borrower to denominate MERS as a beneficiary does not, however, make MERS a beneficiary 17 of that deed of trust. When the lender sells or assigns the note to another MERS member, the 18 change is tracked only in the MERS database, and is not recorded in County records, because 19 MERS continues to appear in the county records as the “grantee” of the deed of trust. If a note 20 is assigned to a non-MERS member, MERS records an assignment and/or release of its 21 supposed interest in favor of the new owner of the note with the County. (AC ¶ 94).

22 _____
¹² Exhibit 3 at p. 9, Merscorp Rules of Membership at II.4. This same condition is contained in the Terms and 23 Conditions of MERS’ Residential Membership Application.

¹³ See, e.g., Exhibit 1 to Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss the Amended Complaint, Ludlow Deed of Trust showing MERS as Beneficiary and Grantee, attached hereto as Exhibit 5.

1 As highlighted above, the MERS System is plagued by a serious conundrum: if MERS 2 is acting only as a “nominee” or “agent” of the lender, MERS itself has no security interest in 3 the real property that is the subject of the deed of trust and, therefore, MERS has no rights 4 which qualify it to assert that it is a beneficiary of the deed of trust. But, unless MERS identifies 5 itself as a “beneficiary,” MERS will not be denominated as a “grantee” in the deed records.
6 (AC ¶89). And, unless MERS is identified as a “grantee” in the deeds records, the MERS 7 System does not work because the protections of the recording statutes are not extended to 8 MERS. The solution for Defendants was thus to simply ignore the law and to identify MERS 9 as the “beneficiary” of an instrument in which MERS holds no beneficial interest. (AC ¶ 90).

10 The deeds of trust in issue here generally state that “MERS is a separate corporation 11 that is acting solely as a nominee for Lender and Lender’s successors and assigns.”¹⁴ Of course, 12 a lender is free to appoint an agent. As noted above, however, if this was MERS’ only status 13 as denominated in the deeds of trust, it would ordinarily not be indexed as a “grantee” in its 14 own right. Thus, Wall Street fixed this problem by adding an untruth to each such deed of 15 trust—namely, that “MERS is the beneficiary under this Security Instrument.” In that way, 16 county clerks, including the clerks of the Counties at issue here, would identify MERS as a 17 “grantee” in their deed records, and MERS, and other members of the mortgage banking 18 industry could take advantage of the recording system.

19 According to MERS, it is the “mortgagee” or “beneficiary” of record in more than 50 20 million mortgages filed in the deed records of counties throughout the United States.¹⁵ MERS, 21 however, does not actually have a security interest in the real property that is the subject of

23 ¹⁴ See, e.g., Exhibit 5.

24 ¹⁵ Exhibit 6, MERSCORP Response to FHFA Report

1 such mortgages or deeds of trust. (AC ¶199). In MERS’ own words:

2 MERS has no interest at all in the promissory note evidencing 3 the mortgage loan. MERS has no financial or other interest in 4 whether or not a mortgage loan is repaid

5 . . .

6 MERS is not the owner of the promissory note secured by the 7 mortgage and has no rights to the payments made by the 8 debtor on such promissory note

9 . . .

10 MERS is not the owner of the servicing rights relating to the 11 mortgage loan and MERS does not service loans. The 12 beneficial interest in the mortgage (or the person or entity 13 whose interest is secured by the mortgage) runs to the owner 14 and holder of the promissory note. In essence, MERS 15 immobilizes the mortgage lien while transfers of the 16 promissory notes and servicing rights continue to occur.¹⁶

17 The MERS system as designed and implemented requires MERS itself to not only hold, 18 but to repeatedly transfer the legal benefits and protections of ORS 93.640 (perfected 19 lienholder status) as many times as necessary, and to as many different MERS members as 20 necessary to achieve securitization without Defendants ever re-filing the security instrument 21 with the County.¹⁷ Assuming that such transfers were legally possible, MERS lacks the legal 22 authority/ability to make them. MERS cannot be a “beneficiary” in its own right, MERS cannot 23 serve as a “beneficiary” in the role as agent or nominee of the lender or obligee, and MERS 24 cannot hold and transfer legal title to the trust deeds that secure them. See Brandrup v.
25 ReconTrust Co., N.A., 353 Or 668, 674-75 (2013).¹⁸

26 ¹⁶ Exhibit 7, Mortg. Elec. Registration Sys., Inc. v. Nebraska Dep’t of Banking & Fin., 270 Neb. 529, 704 N.W.2d 784 (Neb. 2005), Brief of Appellant at 11-12 (citations omitted) (emphasis added). MERS does not explain how it can be a “mortgage lien” holder or how it can “inoculate” loans “against future assignments” while simultaneously insisting the “MERS is not the owner of the promissory note secured by the mortgage and has no rights to the payments made by the debtor on such promissory note secured by the mortgage and has no rights to the payments made by the debtor on such promissory note” and “is not the owner of the servicing rights relating to the mortgage loan.”

¹⁷ At least two loan transfers are necessary to create a residential mortgage backed security. (AC ¶ 110).

¹⁸ Defendants’ suggestion that MERS could theoretically have been acting as the Lender’s “agent” is legally and factually unsupportable.

1 Under Oregon law, MERS' system is legally defective and incapable of accomplishing 2 its stated purpose – allowing MERS members to receive and transfer the benefit of a continuous 3 and uninterrupted perfected mortgage without re-filing the security interest with the Counties 4 and paying the required fee. If the MERS system did not exist, MERS members would have to 5 re-file their deeds of trust with the County each time the security instruments are transferred in 6 order to remain perfected. Likewise, outside the world of MERS, non-MERS members 7 currently have to re-file their deeds of trust with the County and pay its legally required filing 8 fee each time the security instruments are transferred in order to remain perfected. Under 9 Oregon law, transfers within the private MERS system are insufficient to perfect the security 10 instrument for the transferee. Absent a recording of a deed of trust with the County, the security 11 instrument is unperfected in the hands of the transferee. In short, Defendants knowingly failed 12 to record the transfer of deeds of trust necessary for securitization, yet Defendants continue to 13 maintain that they had the benefit of perfected security instruments, a benefit that could only 14 be obtained by recording.¹⁹

15 Despite Defendants' attempts to argue to the contrary, this Motion to Dismiss is 16 substantively identical to the Motion raised in the action brought by Multnomah County in 17 December 20, 2012. Nevertheless, Defendants argue that this Court should overlook this fact 18 on the grounds that "Defendants make many arguments here that Judge Litzenberger did not 19 consider or rule on." (Def.'s Mot. at 3). Yet, to the extent that Defendants articulate arguments 20 in this Motion that were not previously addressed by Judge Litzenberger, the arguments 21 themselves are far from novel. For example, much of Defendants' Motion relies on the idea 22

23 ¹⁹ For purposes of issuing mortgage-backed securities, Defendants claim that mortgages in the Mortgage Pools 24 are secured by "first liens" (AC ¶ 125).

1 that Plaintiffs’ claims are precluded under common law contract principles. However, this 2 argument has already been squarely rejected by the Oregon Supreme Court in Brandrup v.
3 ReconTrust Co., 353 Or. 668 (2013).

4 II. STANDARD OF REVIEW

5 On review of a motion under ORCP Rule 21, the Court assumes the truth of the facts 6 alleged and gives the non-moving party the benefit of all inferences that can be reasonably 7 drawn from the facts. Hornbuckle v. Harris, 69 Or. App. 272 (1984).

8 III. ARGUMENT

9 A. THE COUNTIES ARE THE PROPER PLAINTIFFS TO BRING THE CLAIMS 10 ASSERTED IN THIS ACTION.

11 In their Motion to Dismiss, Defendants argue that the Counties are precluded from suit 12 on the grounds that the Counties are “strangers to the trust deed contracts” and thus cannot 13 challenge those contract terms. In support of their argument, Defendants cite to a decision 14 from the Western District of Arkansas.²⁰ Curiously, although Defendants cite to a decision 15 from an entirely different jurisdiction with no bearing on the decisions of this Court in support 16 of their argument, they opt to entirely disregard the Oregon Supreme Court’s holding in 17 Brandrup v. ReconTrust Co., 353 Or. 668 (2013).

18 In Brandrup, like here, Defendants argued that the “bedrock” principles of “freedom 19 of contract” should dictate the interpretation of the applicable law. Id. at 686-87 (“Defendants 20 also point to the ‘bedrock’ principle that ‘contracts, when entered into freely and voluntarily, 21 shall be held sacred and shall be enforced by courts,’ unless contrary to some ‘overpowering 22 rule of public policy.’”). However, the Supreme Court of Oregon has flatly rejected this

23 ²⁰ See Brown v. Mortg. Elec. Registration Sys., Inc., 903 F. Supp. 2d 723, 727 (W.D. Ark. 2012), aff’d, 738 F.3d 24 926 (8th Cir. 2013).

1 argument, noting: “We disagree. The resolution of this question does not hinge on the parties’ 2 intent; rather, it depends on legislative intent.” Id. at 687. In short, Oregon law does not allow 3 principles of “freedom of contract” to shield a party from responsibility for a violation of 4 Oregon statute. Nor do such principles trump the State of Oregon’s legislative intent, 5 particularly with respect to questions of public policy.

6 Despite Defendants’ arguments to the contrary, the Counties are the appropriate 7 plaintiffs in this action. As a preliminary matter, under the Oregon Constitution, the Counties 8 are constitutional home rule counties who have power to exercise “authority over matters of 9 county concern.” Oregon Constitution, Article VI § 10; see also, Multnomah Kennel Club v.
10 Dep’t. of Revenue, 295 Or. 279 (1983). Further, the County is charged by the Oregon 11 legislature with the capacity to sue. Counties have existed in corporate form with the power 12 to sue and be sued since before statehood. Oregon Statute Section 203.010, originally enacted 13 in 1854, General Laws of Oregon, chapter IX, § 1, specifically gives the power to sue and be 14 sued, stating:

15 Each county is a body politic and corporate for the following 16 purposes:

- 17 (1) To sue and be sued;
- 18 (2) To purchase and hold for the use of the county lands lying 19 within its own limits and any personal estate;
- (3) To make all necessary contracts; and
- (4) To do all other necessary acts in relation to the property and concerns of the county.

20 Under these statutes, counties possess interests that may be asserted against the state.
21 Tillamook County v. State, 302 Or 404, 415-16 (1986). Finally, the County is responsible for 22 the fees collected and their use as well as being responsible for setting and charging fees under 23 Oregon law. ORS 205.320 and ORS 205.323.

1 Indeed, as Judge Litzenberger explained in denying Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss in 2 the prior suit filed by Multnomah County:

3 The Court rejects Defendants’ assertion that Plaintiff does not have 4 standing to assert this claim. Multnomah County is the appropriate 5 plaintiff in this case; it has the power to sue granted by Article VI, 6 sec. 10 of the Oregon Constitution and ORS 203.010(1), Multnomah 7 Kennel Club v. Dept. of Rev., 295 Or. 279 (1983); *Tillamook County
8 v. State*, 302 Or 404, 415-16 (1986).²¹

6 B. PLAINTIFFS HAVE ALLEGED ACTIONABLE DAMAGES UNDER 7 OREGON LAW.

8 Pursuant to Oregon statute, the Counties are statutorily charged with maintaining land 9 records, as well as the collection of, charging of, and use of fees for such service. Defendants’ 10 fraudulent conduct, however, undermined the Counties’ public records, caused the Counties to 11 lose revenue due to Defendants’ failure to properly file for properly perfected security interests, 12 and has forced the Counties to bear the cost of remediating records to accurately reflect the 13 parties with interest in the property. Despite all of this, Defendants argue that the Counties 14 have not alleged actionable damages. Specifically, Defendants argue that Plaintiffs’ claims 15 are not actionable because there is no duty to record assignments under Oregon law and, 16 especially perplexingly, because the Counties’ do not have a property interests in their records.

17 1. Perfected Security Interests Must Be Recorded “As Provided By Law.”

18 Defendants argue that because the recordation of assignments is permissible, they do 19 not need to record the transfers of perfected security interests. However, as described above, 20 Defendant ignores the clear language of ORS 93.640 which states, in relevant part,

21 Every conveyance, deed, land sale contract, assignment of all or any 22 portion of a seller's or purchaser's interest in a land sale contract or 23 other agreement or memorandum thereof affecting the title of real 24 property within this state which is not recorded as provided by law

25 ²¹ See Exhibit 8, September 19, 2014 Letter Order on Defendants’ Motions to Dismiss.

1 is void as against any subsequent purchaser. . .
2 (emphasis added). Thus, Oregon law requires that in order for a security interest in a property 3 to be perfected, the interest must be recorded. ORS 93.640.

4 Given that Defendants sold interests in properties located in the respective Counties, 5 the Counties have a right to seek a determination as to whether the interests in the mortgages 6 and deeds of trust were later transferred as perfected interest or not. This matter is of direct 7 concern to the Counties, and Defendants’ failure to properly record and pay for this protection 8 has caused the Counties compensable damage.

9 2. The Counties Clearly Have An Ownership Interest In Their Own Public 10 Land Records, As Well As The Right To Protect Them.

11 Defendants also attempt to argue that the Counties lack an ownership interest in their 12 land records system because this system is itself governed by statute. Not only does this 13 argument misconstrue the applicable law, but also, it has already been previously rejected.²² 14 Defendants are correct in their assertion that Oregon law vests the counties with a duty to 15 control and protect these public records. However, rather than demonstrate the Counties’ lack 16 of an ownership interest in their records, this duty only further underscores the fact that the 17 public land records and indexes are the Counties’ property.

18 Pursuant to Oregon statute, the County Clerk must “[h]ave the custody of, and safely 19 keep and preserve all files and records of deeds and mortgages of real property, and a record 20 of all maps, plats, contracts, powers of attorney and other interests affecting the title to real 21 property required or permitted by law to be recorded.” ORS 205.130. Thus, as custodians 22 over these records, the Counties have the right to exercise control over them. ORS 192.410.

23 _____
24 ²² See Exhibit 8.

1 Moreover, the Counties may also “adopt reasonable rules necessary for the protection of the 2 records and to prevent interference with the regular discharge of duties of the custodian.” ORS 3 192.430. Notably, the Counties maintain their own public land records and indexes and 4 employ clerks that create such records. The Counties also digitize or place on microfiche all 5 land records at their own expense. In short, it is precisely because the Counties are charged 6 with maintaining these records that the Counties have suffered actionable injuries as a result 7 of Defendants’ actions and are thus the proper parties to bring suit.

8 Prior to the widespread use of the MERS system, the Counties’ public land records 9 accurately reflected priority by reflecting the current lien holder. Now, however, these records 10 reflect MERS as the perpetual lien holder, even if the original Lender – long after the first note 11 transfer – could still be identified. Meanwhile, MERS, a party that cannot hold or transfer 12 anything, is named as the entity holding priority interest.

13 Because Defendants’ actions have harmed the records that the Counties are charged to 14 maintain – records that the Counties own and for which they are responsible – Plaintiffs have 15 properly alleged actionable damages.

16 C. OREGON LAW SUPPORTS THE LEGAL THEORIES UNDERLYING 17 PLAINTIFFS’ CLAIMS.

18 For the reasons outlined in this Response, MERS cannot be a beneficiary in deeds of 19 trust as it has no such interest. See Brandrup, 353 Or. at 679. Moreover, Oregon requires the 20 recording of transfers for a perfected security interest to be in place under ORS 93.640. That 21 is, under Oregon law, obtaining or maintaining a perfected, priority-first lien security interest 22 requires the recordation of subsequent transfers, assignments, and conveyances in the offices 23 of the county clerks of the Counties. Here, the false filings made by Defendants in stating that 24 MERS is a "beneficiary" does not create a perfected security interest for subsequent entities

1 who are purchasers of the security instrument as demonstrated above. As such, there is a basis 2 for Plaintiffs’ claims under Oregon law.

3 1. MERS Cannot Be A Beneficiary In Deeds Of Trust.

4 Defendants improperly attempt to construe Plaintiffs’ Amended Complaint as basing 5 “all its claims on the false legal notion that all trust deeds designating MERS as beneficiary, 6 as nominee (or agent) for the lender and the lender’s successors and assigns, are ‘false’ because 7 MERS cannot be a valid beneficiary or valid agent of the beneficiary.” (Def.’s Mot. at 14).
8 Defendants then proceed to cite to a string of cases in which courts have declined to find that 9 a lien is de facto invalid in the context of a judicial foreclosure. (Def.’s Mot. at 16-18).
10 However, in citing to these cases, Defendants are merely attempting to confuse the issues at 11 hand in this case.

12 Here, the issue is whether Defendants fraudulently asserted MERS’ interest in 13 properties so that MERS would be indexed and once indexed, Defendants then used MERS’ 14 indexing to obtain and profit from a benefit Defendants did not rightfully obtain. Specifically, 15 Plaintiffs allege that Defendants received a first-lien benefit for each deed of trust that 16 Defendants properly recorded under Oregon law. Defendants did so by reselling the benefit of 17 perfected lienholder status to its members thereby allowing them to claim that they were 18 transferring perfected first-lien mortgages without ever re-filing — a legal impossibility in 19 Oregon.

20 When asked whether an entity such as MERS can be a “beneficiary” under the OTDA, 21 the Oregon Supreme Court answered “no”:

22 [T]he “beneficiary” is the lender to whom the obligation that the 23 trust deed secures is owed or the lender’s successor in interest. Thus, an entity like MERS, which is not a lender, may not be a trust deed’s

1 “beneficiary,” unless it is a lender’s successor in interest.
2 Brandrup v. ReconTrust Co., N.A. 353 Or. 668, 689 (2013); see also Niday v. GMAC Mortgage, 3 353 Or 648, 666 (2013) (“MERS is not, and never has been, the beneficiary of the trust deed 4 for the purposes of OTDA.”). Likewise, when asked whether MERS is eligible to serve as 5 “beneficiary” of a trust deed in a role as the obligee’s agent, or nominee, the Oregon Supreme 6 Court again said “no”.

7 Is MERS eligible to serve as beneficiary under the Oregon Trust 8 Deed Act where the trust deed provides that MERS “holds only legal 9 title to the interests granted by Borrower in this Security Instrument, 10 but, if necessary to comply with law or custom, MERS as nominee 11 for Lender and Lender’s successors and assigns) has the right: to 12 exercise any or all of those interests”?

13 Answer: “No.” A “beneficiary” for purposes of the OTDA is the 14 person to whom the obligation that the trust deed secures is owed.
15 At the time of origination, that person is the lender. The trust deeds 16 in these cases designate the lender as the beneficiary, when they 17 provide: “This Security Instrument secures to Lender: (i) the 18 repayment of the loan, and all renewals, extensions and 19 modifications of the note; and (ii) the performance of borrower’s 20 covenants and agreements under this security instrument and the 21 note.” Because the provision that MERS “holds only legal title to 22 the interests granted by Borrower in this Security Instrument, but, if 23 necessary to comply with law or custom, MERS * * * has the right 24 to exercise any or all of those interests,” does not convey to MERS 25 the beneficial right to repayment, the inclusion of that provision 26 does not alter the trust deed’s designation of the lender as the “beneficiary” or make MERS eligible to serve in that capacity.

18 Brandrup, 353 Or. at 693 (emphasis added). Faced with a clear rejection of their “beneficiary” 19 arguments, Defendants now attempt to obfuscate this legal holding by claiming that the ruling 20 in Brandrup concerning the Oregon Trust Deed Act has no application to the Oregon trust 21 deeds at issue in this case. This assertion is meritless.

22 Once again, because MERS itself has no security interest in the real property that is the 23 subject of the deed of trust, MERS has no rights which qualify it to assert that it is a mortgagee,

1 beneficiary, or grantee of the deed of trust. Defendants admittedly knew that fact, but 2 Defendants also knew that unless MERS itself was identified as a “beneficiary,” MERS would 3 not have been indexed as a “grantee” in the deed records. And unless MERS is identified as a 4 “grantee” in the deed records, the MERS System does not work because the protections of the 5 recording statutes are not extended to MERS. To now claim that MERS was always acting as 6 a mere “nominee” or “agent,” a status that would not have allowed MERS to be indexed as a 7 “grantee,” is to admit that Defendants’ filings with Plaintiff claiming otherwise are false.

8 Finally, to the extent that Defendants are attempting to re-argue that MERS can 9 somehow still qualify as a “beneficiary” under a “beneficiary as nominee of Lender” theory, 10 the Oregon Supreme Court has already said “no” to that theory. Brandrup, 353 Or. at 691, 692.
11 MERS cannot operate as the beneficiary and the lender’s agent at the same time. A company 12 cannot be both agent and principal with respect to the same right.

13 2. Defendants’ Argument That A Note Transfer Need Not Be Recorded For 14 A Lien To Be Perfected Is Unsupported By Oregon Law.

15 Defendants have also argued that Plaintiffs’ legal theories fail because Defendants 16 could not have caused damage through their failure to record the mortgage assignments since 17 no Oregon law requires them to record. Even assuming that MERS has been designated an 18 agent for the banks (which it has not), and assuming that Oregon law allows MERS to serve 19 as agent for the thousands of banks at issue (which it does not), Oregon law nevertheless 20 requires that transfers of mortgages or trust deeds be recorded to perfect and prioritize the 21 principals’ security interests.

22 As explained above, the securitizations that Defendants assembled, held, and profited 23 from, required properly recorded, adequately conveyed, perfected and prioritized security 24 interests. Instead, Defendants created a financial instrument that depended upon the recording

1 system, represented that mortgages were perfected and properly conveyed, and were priced 2 accordingly. Defendants cannot now complain that the obligations that they undertook and 3 promised, in order to claim tax and bankruptcy benefits under federal law, were not required 4 by Oregon statute.

5 Thus, as is set forth in greater detail below, the legal theory underlying Plaintiffs’ 6 claims is supported by Oregon law and the Counties’ Amended Complaint in this action has 7 adequately alleged substantive claims for fraud, unjust enrichment, negligence, and gross 8 negligence.

9 D. PLAINTIFFS STATE A COGNIZABLE CLAIM FOR FRAUD.

10 In Oregon, the elements of fraud are: “(1) a representation; (2) its falsity; (3) its 11 materiality; (4) the speaker’s knowledge of its falsity or ignorance of its truth; (5) his intent 12 that it should be acted on by the person and in the manner reasonably contemplated; (6) the 13 hearer’s ignorance of its falsity; (7) his reliance on its truth; (8) his right to rely thereon; (9) 14 and his consequent and proximate injury.” Conzelmann v. N. W.P. & D. Prod. Co., 190 Or 15 332, 350 (1950).

16 In Peterson v. Auvel, 275 Or. 633, 639 (1976), the Oregon Supreme Court made it clear 17 that “When representations by the defendant may be fact or opinion, according to the 18 circumstances, a pleading may not be held insufficient on the ground that the representations 19 are not factual. (citing Eyers v. Bitrbank, 97 Wash. 220, 166 P 656, 659 (1917); Van Slochem 20 v. Villard, 207 NY 587, 101 NE 467, 468 (1913)). The Peterson Court also held that, “[i]n 21 such a case, the question of whether the representation was one of fact or of opinion is for the 22 trier of fact to decide upon proof at trial.” Id. (citing Hansen v. Holmberg, 176 Or. 173, 180-

1 82 (1945); Olston v. Oregon Water Power & Ry. Co., 52 Or. 343, 356-57 (1908); Tacoma v.
2 Tacoma Light & Water Co., 17 Wash. 458, 50 P. 55, 59-60 (1897)).

3 1. Plaintiffs’ Allegations Are Sufficient To Reasonably Infer That Defendants 4 Made False Statements.

5 Plaintiffs’ Amended Complaint alleges that Defendants knowingly filed, or caused to 6 be filed, security instruments in the Counties’ property records which falsely represent that 7 MERS has an interest in certain pieces of real property as a grantee, beneficiary, or mortgagee, 8 i.e., “MERS is the beneficiary under this security instrument.” (AC ¶ 138).

9 MERS has no property or financial interest in the property which is the subject of these 10 deeds of trust and therefore by law cannot be the “Grantee” or the “Beneficiary” of these deeds 11 of trust. In Niday v. GMAC Mortg., LLC, 251 Or. App. 278, 292-99 (2012), the Oregon Court 12 of Appeals held that MERS could not be a beneficiary of a trust deed. Therefore, deeds of 13 trust identifying MERS as the beneficiary are false.

14 2. Plaintiffs’ Allegations Are Sufficient To Reasonably Infer That 15 Defendants’ Misrepresentations Were Statements Of Fact And Not Legal 16 Opinion.

17 Plaintiffs have specifically plead that Defendants intentionally and knowingly 18 misrepresented MERS’ status in official documents with the knowledge and intent that these 19 factual misrepresentations would have a particular legal effect. (AC ¶¶ 130, 131, 134 & 138.)
20 Defendants argue that Plaintiffs fraudulent misrepresentations claims must be dismissed 21 because Defendant’s false statements concerning MERS’ legal status were “legal opinion” and 22 not misrepresentations of material fact. (Def.’s Mot. to Dismiss at 26). This identical argument 23 was recently asserted by MERS and was summarily rejected in another court:

24 Next, Defendants argue that Plaintiffs fraudulent
25 misrepresentation claim must be dismissed because Defendants’ 26 allegedly false statements concerning MERS legal status were

1 legal opinions, not misrepresentations of material facts. The 2 Court disagrees with this distinction.

3 . . .

4 Plaintiff alleges that Defendants represented in official documents 5 filed with the County that MERS was a grantee, grantor, beneficiary, 6 lender, and holder or owner of notes and liens. (FAC 23, 25, 27, 29, 7 and 42.) These statements were not qualified legal opinions, but 8 they were statements of fact made with the knowledge and intent 9 they would have a particular legal effect. . . . The alleged 10 misrepresentations caused the County to index the deeds of trust in 11 a particular way and resulted in MERS being publicly identified 12 through the County records as having a security interest in the 13 properties. Accordingly, viewing the allegations of the FAC in the 14 light most favorable to Plaintiff, the Court concludes that one could 15 plausibly infer that Defendants made material misrepresentations of 16 fact to Plaintiff in the deeds of trust presented to the County for 17 filing.

11 Nueces County v. MERSCORP Holdings, Inc., No. 2:12-CV-00131, 2013 US Dist LEXIS 12 93424, 37-39 (S.D. Tex. July 3, 2013) (emphasis added).

13 The Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss a claim for fraudulent misrepresentation brought 14 by the County of Dallas, Texas was denied on similar grounds.²³

15 “Determining that a statement couched as an opinion is such a representation of fact 16 requires considering such factors as ‘to whom, with what knowledge and in what context a 17 defendant makes a statement,’ and whether the ‘object and design’ of the statement is to induce 18 reliance on it.” Jeska v. Midhall, 71 Or. App. 819, 822 (1985); see also Campbell v. Southland 19 Corp., 127 Or App 93, 100 (1994). As Plaintiffs have alleged, it was the object and design of 20 the MERS scheme to intentionally misrepresent MERS’ status as “the beneficiary” in order to 21 _____

22 ²³ See Exhibit 9, Transcript of hearing in the case “Dallas County, TX v. MERSCORP, INC.,” Case No. 3:11- cv-23 3722, N.D. TX, Dallas Div., before the Hon. Reed C. O’Conner, May 23, 2012 (announcing Order on Motion to Dismiss and allowing Plaintiffs claims of declaratory relief for statutory violations of TX Govt. Code 192.007, fraudulent misrepresentation, unjust enrichment, conspiracy, piercing corporate veil, injunctive relief and declaratory judgment to go forward).

1 induce the Counties to index MERS as the “grantee.” Defendants knew that MERS was not 2 the beneficiary and that Plaintiffs were relying upon the truthfulness of Defendants’ 3 misrepresentations as Defendants had superior knowledge. Likewise, the Defendants’ 4 misrepresentations did not concern the legal effects of an instrument but were statements of 5 fact Defendants made in order to get MERS indexed. Furthermore, “whether a statement was 6 only an opinion or was an actionable assertion of fact is normally a question of fact for the 7 jury.” Buckner v. Home Depot, U.S.A., Inc., 188 Or. App. 307, 312 (2003).

8 3. Defendants Made False Representations To Plaintiffs In The Deeds of 9 Trust Filed With Plaintiffs.

10 As specifically alleged in Plaintiff’s Amended Complaint, representations were made 11 to the Plaintiffs via written instruments created by Defendants which were presented to 12 Plaintiffs by Defendants for the purpose of inducing Plaintiffs to index MERS as grantee, 13 mortgagee, or beneficiary among the public land records of Multnomah County. (AC ¶¶ 82, 14 90, 131, 134, 139, 142, 143, & 147).

15 4. Plaintiff Has Specifically Alleged That Defendants Knew Their Statements 16 Were False.

17 Defendants knew they were making false statements to Plaintiff and did so in order to 18 cause Plaintiff to index MERS as a "grantee," "beneficiary," or "mortgagee." Making false 19 statements in order to be indexed in the record was the backbone of the MERS Scheme. (AC 20 ¶ 131, 134, 138 & 139). Plaintiff specifically alleges that Defendants "knew" they were making 21 false statements to Plaintiff and that they "intended" to make false statements to Plaintiff. (AC 22 ¶¶ 131, 134, 138& 139).

1 5. Plaintiffs Have Specifically Alleged That Defendants’ Misrepresentations
2 Were Material And That Plaintiffs Relied On Them.

3 The false statements at issue are material because Plaintiffs are required to maintain 4 accurate public records and in so doing Plaintiffs rely on the truthfulness and accuracy of the 5 documents presented for recording. (AC ¶¶ 39.) A critical element of the MERS Scheme was 6 that the County would accept these material statements (“MERS is the beneficiary”) as true and 7 would index MERS in the deed records. But for Defendants’ misrepresentations, Plaintiffs 8 would not have done so. Thus, to argue that Defendants’ false statements were not material is 9 without merit.

10 6. Plaintiffs Lacked Full Knowledge Of Defendants’ Fraudulent Recording 11 Activities Or Their Unlawful Taking of Benefits.

12 When Defendants recorded at the various County offices, Plaintiffs took Defendants’ 13 representations at face value and trusted that the documents that Defendants presented for 14 recording were true and accurate. It is absurd for Defendants to suggest that Plaintiffs are 15 somehow precluded from their claims because the Counties’ Clerks and Deputies “continued 16 to record MERS trust deeds even after Brandrup.” See Def.’s Mot. to Dismiss at 29.

17 For these reasons, dismissal of Plaintiffs’ Fraud Claim is therefore inappropriate 18 because Plaintiffs have properly pled this claim.

19 E. PLAINTIFFS STATE A COGNIZABLE CLAIM FOR UNJUST
20 ENRICHMENT.

21 Contrary to Defendants’ assertions, Plaintiffs’ unjust enrichment claims are viable 22 claims for restitution in Oregon.

23 A claim for unjust enrichment is based on what another has unjustly received and 24 retained for his own benefit. “A benefit received and retained can consist of any form of 25 advantage and exists, for example, where one party adds to the property of another or saves

1 another from expense or loss.” Hitchcock v Delaney, 192 Or. App 453, 459 (2004). Unjust 2 enrichment is well-established in Oregon law:

3 An action for money had and received, although an action at law, is governed by 4 equitable principles. The action is liberal in form, and greatly favored by the courts. The 5 generally accepted test which determines whether a recovery may be had is whether the 6 defendant, in equity and good conscience, is entitled to retain the money to which the 7 plaintiff asserts claim. The right to the refund is based upon a promise to return which 8 the law implies, irrespective of any actual promise, and even against the refusal of the 9 wrongful party to make it.

10 Comcast of Oregon II, Inc. v City of Eugene, 346 Or 238, 253 (2009) (quoting Smith v.
11 Rubel, 140 Or. 422, 426-27 (1932)).

12 Under the theory of unjust enrichment, the measure of plaintiff’s recovery is “the 13 reasonable value of the property received” by the defendants. Burklund v Clayton, 275 Or. 115, 14 119 (1976) (citing Hughes v. Bembry, 256 Or. 172 (1970)). See also Elle v. Babbitt, 259 Or.
15 590, 609 (1971) (the measure of restitution for a benefit conferred on another is the value of 16 the benefit to the recipient, not the expense to the party who confers it).

17 Recovery under a claim of unjust enrichment is not dependent upon the existence of a 18 particularized wrong; “equity may impress a constructive trust on property ‘obtained through 19 actual fraud, misrepresentations, concealments, or through undue influence, duress, taking 20 advantage of one’s weakness or necessities, or through any other similar means or under any 21 other similar circumstances which render it unconscientious for the holder of the legal title to 22 *retain and enjoy the beneficial interest.” Tupper v. Roan, 349 Or. 211, 220 (2010) (quoting John 23 Norton Pomeroy, 4 A Treatise on Equity Jurisprudence § 1053, 119 (5th ed. 941)) (emphasis in 24 original).*

1 1. The County Conferred A “Benefit” Cognizable Under Oregon Law.

2 Defendants’ assertion that the Oregon Legislature and not the Counties confers the 3 “benefit” of a perfected security instrument ignores Oregon law. Specifically, Defendants 4 claim that because the right of a lienholder to obtain the benefit of a perfected security interest 5 is codified in a statute enacted by the Oregon Legislature, the Oregon Legislature, therefore, is 6 the one and only party that actually bestows the benefit upon a lienholder. According to 7 Defendants’ logic, because the Oregon Legislature enacts all statutes, the Oregon Legislature 8 confers all statutory benefits and is the one and only party entitled to receive any compensation 9 associated with the conferring of said benefit. What the actual statute says or what other statutes 10 enacted by the same Legislature regarding the same subject matter have to say are apparently of 11 no consequence. This logic is flawed.

12 The Oregon Legislature specifically provided in ORS 93.640 that the benefit of perfected 13 lienholder status will not be conferred upon any party unless and until that party records “as 14 provided by law.” That same Oregon Legislature specifically sets out in companion statutes (that 15 it also enacted into law) the actual method a party wishing to become a perfected lienholder must 16 use in order to obtain the actual benefit from the County. See ORS 93.643; ORS 205.130. A 17 review of the statutes themselves confirms the Oregon Legislature did not reserve for itself or 18 for the State any role or responsibility whatsoever in the conferring of the benefit upon a 19 lienholder. To the contrary, the Oregon Legislature specifically delegated to the County all duties 20 and responsibilities for conferring the benefit and provided that County (not the Legislature or 21 State) is entitled to any payments/revenues derived from conferring the benefit. This is consistent 22 with the historic fact that the County — not the Legislature or the State — has always had 23 responsibility for recording and maintaining land and deed records and that County land records

1 pre-date the existence of the State itself. It is axiomatic that the party that confers the benefit is 2 the party from who the benefit is obtained. It is undisputed that the benefit of perfected lienholder 3 status can only be obtained from the County and that by statutory design, neither the Legislature 4 nor the State play any role in the actual conference of the benefit.

5 2. Defendants Unjustly Retained The Benefit Conferred By The Counties.

6 By design, the very purpose of the MERS System is to allow MERS' members to take 7 the benefits of the public recording system without having to pay for them.²⁴

8 Without the MERS System, Defendants could not have taken the benefits of the public 9 recording system, and, without taking the benefits of the public recording system, Defendants 10 could not have achieved their ultimate goal of securitization and the issuance of Residential 11 Mortgage Backed Securities. Moreover, MERS purports to maintain a national electronic 12 database that tracks the changes in ownership of home mortgages, as well as changes in loan 13 servicers.²⁵ The MERS System, however, is inherently unreliable. This fact is most apparent 14 in the abuse of the MERS System by MERS, lenders, and loan servicers in pursuing 15 foreclosures.

16 In April 2011 MERS and MERSCORP executed a Stipulation and Consent to the 17 Issuance of a Consent Order with the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the Board of 18 Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Office 19 of Thrift Supervision, and the Federal Housing Finance Agency (the "Federal Regulators"), in 20 which the entities agreed to the terms of a comprehensive Consent Cease and Desist Order

23 ²⁴ According to MERS, "[a]ny loan registered on the MERS® System is inoculated against future assignments because MERS remains the mortgagee no matter how many times servicing is traded." See Exhibit 4, MERS– About Us.

24 ²⁵ See, e.g., Exhibits 1, 4, and 6.

1 ("Consent Order").²⁶ The Consent Order grew out of an inter-agency review of major residential 2 mortgage servicers and mortgage service providers and included an examination of MERS and 3 MERSCORP, “both of which provide various services to financial institutions related to 4 tracking and registering residential mortgage ownership and servicing, acting as mortgagee of 5 record in the capacity of nominee for lenders, and initiating foreclosure actions.”²⁷

6 The Consent Order included findings that MERS and MERSCORP “(a) have failed to 7 exercise appropriate oversight, management supervision and corporate governance, and have 8 failed to devote adequate financial, staffing, training, and legal resources to ensure proper 9 administration and delivery of services to Examined Members; and (b) have failed to establish 10 and maintain adequate internal controls, policies, and procedures, compliance risk 11 management, and internal audit and reporting requirements with respect to the administration 12 and delivery of services to Examined Members.”²⁸

13 In sum, Defendants cite no Oregon authority that the County conferred no “benefit” on 14 Defendants that is cognizable under Oregon law. Moreover, the other cases from other 15 jurisdictions cited by Defendants either do not address the issues directly or do not provide any 16 actual legal analysis. See, e.g., Fuller v. MERS, 888 F.Supp. 2d 1275 (2012) (providing no 17 legal analysis or explanation of Florida law). Accordingly, Plaintiffs have stated cognizable 18 claims for unjust enrichment and Defendants’ Motion should be denied.

19 F. PLAINTIFFS STATE A COGNIZABLE CLAIM FOR NEGLIGENCE.

20 Under Oregon law, foreseeability is the determinative factor in Oregon negligence

[T]he issue of liability for harm actually resulting from defendant’s conduct properly depends on whether that conduct unreasonably created a foreseeable risk to a protected interest of the kind of harm that befell the plaintiff. The role of the court is what it ordinarily is in cases involving the evaluation of particular situations under broad and imprecise standards: to determine whether upon the facts alleged or the evidence presented no reasonable fact finder could decide one or more elements of liability for one or the other party.

Fazzolari v. Portland School Dist. No. 1J, 303 Or. 1, 17 (1986).

Plaintiffs’ Complaint states that the Defendants developed a scheme which first allowed MERS to be falsely indexed as a beneficiary in deeds of trust. Next, once inside the Counties’ record keeping system, the scheme allowed MERS members to transfer the legal benefits and protections of ORS 93.640 (perfected lienholder status) amongst and between MERS members without re-filing the security interest with the Counties and paying the required fee. (AC ¶¶ 116-143.) The Complaint then sets out specific claims for negligence and the grossly negligent conduct of the Defendants, which “caused foreseeable harm to County’s public record.” (AC ¶ 169-181).

The facts as alleged make clear that the harm suffered was not only foreseeable, but was the intended purpose of Defendants’ actions. The harm was an acknowledged byproduct of the MERS scheme in which all Defendants participated. (AC ¶ 147). Finally, the fact that the Counties were not Parties to the Deeds of Trust has no bearing on the issue of whether the Defendants’ actions caused harm to the Counties.

1. The Economic Loss Doctrine Does Not Bar Plaintiffs’ Negligence Claim.

The economic loss doctrine does not apply when there has been injury to person or property and therefore does not apply with respect to damaged public records for which the County is responsible. As Oregon courts have explained:

1 The only case in which the Supreme Court provided an explicit 2 definition for the term “economic loss” is Onita, in which the court 3 stated that “economic losses” refers to “financial losses such as 4 indebtedness incurred and return of monies paid, as distinguished 5 from damages for injury to person or property.” 315 Or. at 159 n.
6 6. In subsequent cases, we have followed that lead and defined 7 “economic losses” to refer to financial losses to intangibles.

8 Harris v. Suniga, 209 Or App 410, 418 (2006). The harm done to County is to its property – the 9 records it is charged to maintain. The Amended Complaint sets out the harm caused to County 10 and its property. (AC ¶ 147). Further, Plaintiffs have alleged that the subject records are 11 “public” records which constitute the property of the County, and County is charged with the 12 responsibility of maintaining the same. (AC ¶¶ 36-43). In short, public records are the property 13 of the County, are maintained by the County, and the County is charged with the upkeep of 14 same.

15 Finally, Defendants’ assertion that a “special relationship” is required is unsupported 16 by law and contravenes the statutory provisions that expressly allow Plaintiffs to bring this 17 suit. See supra Section III.A.

18 2. Counties Concedes That Criminal Statutes Are Precluded From Claims of 19 Negligence Per Se.

20 Plaintiffs concede that Oregon criminal statutes concerning making false statements and 21 interfering with public records require that actions in violation of the statutes be made 22 “knowingly” and that current negligence case law holds that such mens rea condition precludes 23 a claim of mere negligence. The fact that knowing violation of Oregon criminal law was part of 24 the elaborate business plan of MERSCORP shows that the MERS scheme was conceived and 25 operated “knowingly” and illegally. Although Oregon negligence law seems to preclude a 26 remedy for knowingly violating a criminal statute in the pursuit of a tortious act, Defendants 27 should not be allowed to escape responsibility for their conduct.

3. The Counties Have Properly Pled Gross Negligence.

In Garrison v Pacific Northwest Bell, 45 Or. App. 523, 532 (1980), the Oregon Court of Appeals defined gross negligence as follows:

Gross negligence is characterized by conscious indifference to or reckless disregard of the rights of others. In the context of a guest passenger case it has been stated that "[f]in order to show gross negligence it is incumbent upon the plaintiff to prove that defendant's conduct, when measured objectively, reveals `a state of mind indicative of an indifference to the probable consequences of one's acts.' This state of mind has been described as an 'I don't care what happens' attitude.' Ordinarily, the issue of gross negligence is a question of fact to be decided by the jury. The court will withdraw the issue from the jury only when it can say as a matter of law that the actor's conduct falls short of gross negligence.

Based on Defendants' actions and the ensuing results, Plaintiff's factual allegations as set forth in Plaintiff's Amended Complaint satisfy this criteria. (AC ¶¶ 173- 182). It is evident by Defendants' conduct that they were well aware of what would occur to County's records and income, but chose to act anyway. The system Defendants set up and used was designed to alter and avoid both, despite legal requirements otherwise. Defendants' argument regarding gross negligence fails.

IV. CONCLUSION

Plaintiffs have undertaken good-faith efforts to plead cognizable claims for relief and believe that they have done so. The central facts in this matter are not in dispute: the MERS System caused a wholesale collapse of the public recording system in Oregon by having Defendants denominate MERS in trust deeds as something it is not – a "beneficiary" to be indexed as "an indirect party" or in some cases "a direct party" in the County's property records. The purpose of these false statements was to place MERS into the recording system so that subsequent transfers/assignments could be performed without having to pay the County
