ISSUES DISCUSSED:

EFFECT OF AMENDMENT:

No amendment.

BACKGROUND:

Under Oregon law, property is subject to civil forfeiture when it has been used in relation to prohibited conduct. Prohibited conduct is defined in law and involves criminal activities. Oregon law also specifies disbursement of civil forfeiture proceeds. For instance, it specifies payment for certain costs associated with the forfeiture and deposit of 20 percent of the proceeds into the Oregon Criminal Justice Commission Account to support drug court programs.

In 1999, the Public Safety Memorial Fund Board was created. The Public Safety Memorial Fund (Memorial Fund) provides certain benefits to eligible officers and their family members, including educational scholarship. Oregon law also provides a scholarship for children of public safety officers that is awarded by the Higher Education Coordinating Commission (HECC).

House Bill 4056-A distributes ten percent of asset forfeitures from prohibited conduct into an account for these scholarships awarded by HECC. It also modifies the criteria for these scholarships to mirror the criteria contained in the Memorial Fund, such as specifying the qualifying death or disability of the public safety officer. It requires HECC to report to the Legislative Assembly on the scholarship program by January 1, 2021.
