Gov. Brown calls for increased investment in state's veteran services

Oregon Governor Kate Brown visited the Oregon Veterans' Home in Lebanon (OVHL) on March 21 to tour the facility and hold a listening session with Oregon veteran community leaders.

After the meeting with veteran leadership, she held a press conference at the OVHL in which she called on the Legislature to support additional investments in veteran services and to provide a home for every veteran in Oregon.

"In a difficult budget environment, I am proud that we were able to almost double funding for veterans efforts in my proposed budget," Brown said, speaking to residents, staff, and veterans' advocates at the OVHL. "This has always been the starting point and over the last few months, I have heard from veterans across the state about how we can best support veterans and their families. Thanks to their input, I am proud to stand shoulder to shoulder with our veterans to support general fund resources for current services and an even greater level of investment with Measure 50 Lottery funds."

With a better than expected revenue forecast by the Office of Economic Analysis, an additional $200 million in state revenue decreases the previously projected budget gap in the next biennium from $1.8 billion to $1.6 billion.

With that increase in revenue and veterans' community strong advocacy, Brown said she supports using state general fund dollars to support the current level of veteran services, allowing that new Measure 50 Lottery funds be fully focused on expanding services for Oregon veterans for their health, education and economic opportunity.

"With these additional resources, I am calling for further investments in veteran services and a focused initiative to end veterans' homelessness in Oregon," Brown said. "Together with a broad group of public and private partners, we must continue to fund affordable housing and homeless prevention efforts to ensure every Oregon veteran has a roof over his or her head."

Brown also directed the Oregon Department of Veterans' Affairs and Oregon Housing and Community Services to continue to work with front line partners to marshal state, federal, and local resources with nonprofits, faith-based organizations, and others to expand veterans' housing.

Several regional communities including the city of Eugene, Lane County, the city of Portland and Multnomah County have shown a pathway with focused innovation and collaboration to ensure a home for every veteran.

Brown called on state leaders to invest in similar, proven local initiatives to expand homeless prevention resources and permanent affordable housing options for veterans and their families throughout Oregon.
