100% opposed. Serves no purpose in preventing malicious behavior by a minute number of people. Inanimate objects only do as directed or used by human desire. If I were to sell my motor vehicle to someone (locked up) and a hour and a half later that buyer drives through a crowded parking lot killing say, a half dozen people, would I be liable?

Think about this. And reply with an explanation if that were even possible.

Thanks,

Your boss 'Joe' taxpayer and voter.
