I am a farmer and a father, and I expect my government to protect the future of the land, and the future of my children. Climate change is the threat I most fear for both. If you have any courage, you will support strong climate change legislation, which currently is in front of you in the bills referenced above. Moving away from fossil fuel will hurt me financially, but that is ok. I care about the future--not just my financial well-being-- and I hope you care about more than your political future. Stand for something other than your own self-interest, or live with the title of "coward."

Running away from the problem, by fleeing the capitol and hiding in closets, or in Idaho is contemptible, and beneath the dignity of anyone who fancies him/herself a credible representative of the people. Support strong climate change legislation, or prepare to get a job at a fast-food joint because I will work to drive you from office if you do not protect our children and our land.
