Subject: Restaurants Paid to Make Meals for Underserved Populations
Date: Thursday, March 19, 2020 8:10:31 AM

What if (some) restaurants were funded to make meals to be delivered to institutions and food distribution centers and/or package foods to be distributed by emergency food sources like FISH?

Funding could cover the food cost and minimum wage for the restaurant workers (or at least some wage), allowing restaurants (at least some of them) to keep operating and keep the food supply chain (mfr to needy populations) flowing.

Restaurants would be chosen strategically - i.e. located near populations needed service, etc.

Just a thought, thanks.
