

As a current renter and a current owner in another state I see both sides.

As an owner I am offering reduced rent that may not cover my mortgage but will lessen the load for my renter and give the sense of caring for my tenant. Without the rental income I will not have resources to pay my mortgage or taxes. And foreclosure /bankruptcy are expensive.

As a renter I am having loss of income as well in my current job. So I need some courtesy but I am not responsible for taxes and other upkeep on the property.

Do we need to combine households?

Yes I am looking for a roommate.

How about looking at mortgage relief maybe paying percentages to avoid foreclosure?

Halliedew

Hallie

Halliedew

541.350.3160