

Dear Sirs,

I see where the need is to help the tenants with their rents and the Landlords (owners) with receiving the rents to pay for their needs, but there is one piece not being looked at, the property managers. Their income is based on rents collected, and no rents collected no pay for managers, and yet we still need to deal with the properties and not ELIGIBLE for unemployment.

So as realtors and property managers do we fall through the cracks?

The cog that keeps things going between tenants and owners, not only sending money but paying property bills, mortgages, taxes, insurance, water/sewer, garbage, maintenance, power and more. If these people fall through the crack the rest isn't going to work.

Steve Stalcup
Sea Winds Realty LLC